10 GALLONS OF GAS A MONTH, RATIONS PLAN

Drastic Program Being Drawn as Transportation Problem Becomes More Acute.

DEFINITE POLICY SOON

Washington Indicates Detailed Program Will Be Made Known Within Week.

Don't worry too much about wearing out your tires this summer. You may not be able to buy enough gasoline to travel very far.

Government officials predicted today in Washington that the average motorist may be limited to 10 gallons of motor fuel a month soon because of the increasing gasoline transportation problem.

While some provisions will be made to allow defense workers to get to and from their jobs by automobile, if no other transportation is available, war agencies in the capital are planning gasoline rationing on a basis for stricter than any rate heretofore mentioned or even proposed. One suggestion was made to limit all motorists to five gallons a month but rationing officials have tentatively decided to allow ten gallons a month as a starter.

Gasoline rationing is expected to be under way early in May, as soon as officials have completed the nation wide registrations for the control of sugar. The first detailed announcement may be made in about one week. At the same time, war agencies have revised plans to build an $80,000,000 pipeline from Texas to the Philadelphia-New York area to help alleviate the gasoline shortage.

The first rationing of motor fuel will be decreed for states along the eastern seaboard including the District of Columbia and for the states of Oregon and Washington in the Pacific northwest.

Deliveries of gasoline to filling stations already have been curtained one-third in those areas, but that move is not enough to offset dwindling supplies of gasoline and oil.

War production board officials declared that the railroads have done a remarkable job in moving oil to the east coast, after regular sea shipments were disrupted by tanker sinkings in the Atlantic.

SHIP LOST

Australian Destroyer Sunk In Bay of Bengal.

MELBOURNE — (INS) — The Australian destroyer Vampire was lost as the result of enemy action during recent operations in the Bay of Bengal, Prime Minister John Curtin revealed today.

Loss of the 1,090-ton H.M.A.S. Vampire was the first Australian casualty since the Japanese sent a naval and air force into the Bay of Bengal and Indian ocean after seizure of the Andaman islands.

She carried a normal complement of 134 officers and men. No mention was made as to the fate of the crew. The Vampire was equipped with four four-inch guns and five of smaller caliber. She had six 21-inch torpedo tubes.

CLAIMS INCREASE

Another Crowd of 5,000 Turns Out to Give Cheering Send-off to Draftees; New Group to Leave Tomorrow

Send-offs for the soldier boys became an established institution in Mansfield today as the city proved by a surprising attendance of another 5,000 that it wants to support the Richland Victory Civic committee's plan for a civic demonstration for each contingent of the county's sons leaving for service in the army.

Highly gratified at the response today, committee officials hoped for an equally large and enthusiastic crowd tomorrow when the second contingent in two days departs for an army induction center, and again on Friday, when the third group of the week departs.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals, who directed the arrangements for traffic at both occasions, said today's crowd equalled that on March 24, when the city staged its first civic demonstration to bid its sons Godspeed as they leave for service.

The time for the two remaining send-offs this week will be the same as for that today—7:30 a. m. The Madison high school band will play tomorrow morning when the contingent from Board 2 departs, and a high school band from one of the county's schools will play Friday, at the send-off for the Board 3 contingent.

Details for Friday's send-off remain to be worked out, but plans were complete today for tomorrow's event The square will be blocked off to traffic, and the special buses which will carry the young men to an army induction center will assemble on Main street, in front of the Richland Trust building, where Board 2 has its office.

The atmosphere at today's departure was much like that on March 24. There were inevitable tears, and there were tender embraces as boys said goodbye to their mothers and other relatives, and their sweethearts, and in some cases their wives.

But there were smiles too, and hearty handshakes, and cheery waving of thousands of hands. There were cheers as the buses

Here are four typical scenes at this morning's send-off for a contingent of selectees—first of three departing this week, as it left the city for an army induction center. The two upper photographs show part of the crowd which milled around the three buses shortly before departure time. In lower left is shown a scene that was repeated hundreds of times, as relatives and friends reached up to the open bus windows for a final handshake with one of the selectees. In lower right photograph is shown the group in one of three buses just before it drew out.

Raid Boulogne Area at Dawn, Damage Ships

Germans Slay More Hostages for Attacks On Soldiers; Vichy Asks Reprieves For 20 as Revolt Smolders; Reds Crack Finn Line.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—British commando units, operating under the control of Lord Louis Mountbatten, raided the Boulogne area of occupied France early today.

A communique issued late this afternoon gave the first inkling that the dare-devil raiders whose operations are all personally plotted by the cousin of King George VI had staged a new "hit and run" invasion.

In the early hours of this morning, the communique said, commando forces penetrated the coastal defense of Boulogne and withdrew after two hours.

Casualties were light.

"No British ships were damaged in this engament and naval casualties were slight," it was announced.

"In the early hours of the 22nd April," the communique said, "a small reconnaissance raid was carried out against the French coast near Boulogne

"German troops holding this part of the coast were driven back before the advance of our troops.

(Editor's Note—The British forces may have struck out from Dover, some 25 miles across the English channel from Boulogne.)

"A British patrol penetrated the coastal defenses and withdrew after two hours. Casualties were very light.

"The naval force accompanying the reconnaissance force engaged enemy armed trawlers.

"One German trawler was severely damaged and another left afire. No British ships were damaged in this engagement. Naval casualties were slight."

The Boulogne raid was the farthest east the commandoes have yet gone and the operation was without a doubt one of the most daring of the war. The entire channel coast, particularly in the

Seven From Richland County Believed Prisoners of Japs

With no advices from the war department to indicate that they were killed or wounded, seven men from Richland county and two other Ohioans who are relatives of a Mansfield family, were believed today to be prisoners of the Japanese on Batan peninsula.

The war department announced in Washington that an Ohio National Guard company of the 192nd tank battalion is believed to be held captive by the enemy.

Although they were not National Guardsmen, five Mansfield men are members of this battalion. They are Albert L. Allen, Paul Grassick, Earl Charles, George Zimmerman, and John Robinette. Also a member of the battalion is Robert Miller, of R D. 4, Mansfield. Their unit landed in the Phillippines last November.

Captain Kenneth Collins, of Lacarne, a cousin of A. C. Adams of Mansfield, and John Minier, of Port Clinton, a brother of Mrs. Adams, also are in the same battalion.

Nelson Hale, another Mansfielder, also was in Bataan, although he was not in the tank battalion; and may also be in enemy hands. The War Department statement said that the units believed captured included the 192nd and 194th tank battalions, and the 200th coast artillery.

It was stated that three officers and 104 enlisted men of the artillery had escaped to Corregidor, but that all other members of the National Guard on the peninsula were believed to be captives.

It was estimated unofficially that 3,000 guardsmen had participated in the battle. These were included in previous War Department announcements estimating Bataan losses at 35,000 combatant American and Filipino troops, 25,000 civilian refugees, and several thousand supply and other special forces.

Roland Lee, assistant adjutant general, said at Columbus that there were 175 Ohioans, mostly from the Port Clinton area, among the 192nd tank battalion.

STARTS MAY 5

First Food Rationing With Stamps Begins Soon.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The nation's first rationing of food by stamps will start May 5, the Office of Price Administration announced today, with the first stamp good for purchase of one pound of sugar during the period May 5 to May 16.

Restaurants, hotels and the like will be cut 50 per cent under the amount used last year, while bakers, confectioners, beverage bottlers, and ice cream and dairy products producers will be limited to 70 per cent of past use.

Household consumers, who will register at schools throughout the country May 4-7, inclusive, will be entitled to purchase one pound of sugar with each of the first four stamps in war ration book No. 1.

The first stamp is valid May 5-16, the second May 17-30, the third, May 31-June 13, and the fourth, June 14-27.

BITTINGER RAPS FUND TRANSFER

Calls Bricker Action To Aid Defense 'A Makeshift.'

COLUMBUS—(AP)—J. Freer Bittinger, state Democratic chairman, today termed the transfer of $2,000,000 from the poor relief fund to civilian defense "a makeshift arrangement," but added the move will ease the minds of people in the state's defense areas

The state board of control made the transfer at the request of Gov. John W. Bricker.

Bittinger asserted that the allocation would not go far in solving the problem but would aid in getting the defense program started.

WAR BOND DRIVE WORKERS NAMED

Chairman Named in Each of County's 18 Townships; 1,000 Take Part.

Mansfield and Richland county war bond campaign organizations were virtually complete today with the appointment of a campaign chairman in each of the 18 townships and John L. Catlett, Mansfield attorney, to head the men campaigners in Mansfield.

Plans for the rural campaign will be outlined at a meeting of the 18 township chairmen with Paul M. Eliot, general chairman, and George B. Ganyard, rural chairman, at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in the county agent's office at the courthouse, Ganyard said today.

Approximately 1,000 workers will launch the drive for war bond pledges May 2 and the campaign will continue until May 9. Catlett, appointed by Chairman Eliot, will heads about 250 men campaigners in Mansfield Mrs Louis J. Ott will direct a similar number of women workers. John

Civic Music Drive Workers Hold Report Session Tonight

Progress made by Mansfield Civic Music association during the first half of its membership drive to assure a "capacity house" for the next concert season will be revealed tonight when the 245 campaign workers are scheduled to make their first complete report at campaign headquarters at the Ohio Fuel Gas company, 68 Park avenue west.

Mrs. D. O. Meese, membership campaign chairman, said today that the campaign is well under way but in order to reach as many prospective new members as possible, workers will be asked to accept additional names for solicitation when they report today between 7 p. m. and 9 p. m.

No season memberships in the association will be available after the campaign closes Saturday night, Mrs. Meese pointed out. As in the past, no tickets will be sold for any individual performance.

Chester Porterfield, Civic Music's New York representative, will be on hand tonight to aid Mrs. Meese and Mrs. Stanley Richardson, headquarters chairman, in the check-up.

Persons interested in obtaining Civic Music memberships or in learning more about the association's program may get in touch with headquarters by telephoning 1689-6, Porterfield said.

Supreme Court Holds 53-Cent Columbus Gas Rate Too Low

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The Ohio supreme court today held the 53-cent Columbus gas rate too low and again sent the old controversy back to the utilities commission with orders to establish a new rate.

Since the court previously had held a rate of 56.22 cents excessive and now finds a 53 cent rate insufficient, the commission must determine a rate somewhere between those figures.

In disapproving the 56.22 rate, the court had held the commission allowed the Ohio Fuel Gas company expenses for litigation incident to the stabilization of natural gas with inert gas. Such expense, the court held, should not be included in rate making.

In trying to eliminate that expense, the court said the commission went too far, reducing the expense of litigation by 40 per cent.

In applying this 40 per cent reduction to the rate structure, the commission cut 7 per cent off all expenses. This the court held illegal.

In remanding the case to the utilities commission, the court directed it "to compute a rate in the long-approved and well-established method on the basis of the actual purchase of natural gas."

MORE TO COME

U. S. Advisor Says Additional Troops to Go to India.

NEW DELHI, India—(AP)—Because the defense of India is of vital concern to the United States "U. S. troops already are in India and more will come," Louis Johnson, head of the United States advisory mission here, told a press confernece today.

Johnson's reference to troops now in India presumably meant the air force under Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton which already had struck effective blows at the Japanese.)

Of Sir Stafford Cripps' unsuccessful mission to seek Indian approval of Britain's plans for her future status, Johnson said only that "there is going to be a Johnson version of the story, but the time for that version has not arrived as yet."

OFFICE FIRE TAKES 3 LIVES

Janitor, Two Charwomen Killed In Pittsburgh Blaze.

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Two charwomen and a janitor died today in a fire which swept 18 offices on the third floor of the Highland building in the heart of suburban East Liberty.

At least two of the victims could have escaped had they not entered the building to make certain all other employes were out.

Mrs. Anna Polaski, apparently panic stricken, died in a plunge from a ninth floor window. Police said she could have escaped down the stairway. Mrs. Stephanie Zivic, supervisor of the charwomen, and Johnson, were trapped in an elevator. Fire burned through the elevator cable, stopping the cage between the fourth and fifth floors.

Appointment of John W Graham, general manager of The News-Journal, as national councilor to represent the Ohio Chamber of Commerce at the 30th annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce next week in Chicago, was announced today.

Graham was appointed by A. Graves Williams of Portsmouth, president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. Each state organization is permitted to send one councilor to the national meeting.

The sessions, scheduled to open Monday, were moved to Chicago from Washington because of crowded conditions in the national capital due to wartime activi-

Cripps Sees Chance of Solving India Problem.

LONDON —(AP)— Sir Stafford Cripps expressed the belief today that there still was some possibility a new plan for settling India's problems could be devised before the end of the war, but said any such proposal "would have to come from India."

MADE IN JAPAN: Hongkong Now 'Starving Hell' Writer Says

(Henry Bough, a member of the Reuters staff formerly in Hongkong, escaped to Free China from the one-time British crown colony after three months in the Japanese-occupied city. He wrote the following dispatch for Reuters and the Associated Press.)

* * *

By HENRY BOUGH

CHUNGKING—A Japanese-made hell—that was Hongkong three months after its occupation.

Starvation faces a large proportion of the population. When the Japanese seized the island it was estimated there was a nine-month supply of food on hand. But large quantities were commandeered by the Japanese army and shipped away.

Food supplied the prisoners of war is poor and scarce, and there is much sickness. Civilian internees are somewhat better off, for they occasionally get fish and meat. The prisoners of war are given only rice and beans.

I can confirm the appalling stories of murder and rape which have been reported Many of the worst atrocities were committed in the presence of Japanese officers. They are only too true. Many of the women, after being attacked, were shot.

In the early days of the occupation the Japanese troops engaged in widespread looting. Men and women were stopped in the streets and watches and money were taken from them Under the pretext of searching for arms, Japanese troops under the command of officers entered and ransacked private premises.

Everything possible is done to lower western prestige. Britons are ordered to sweep the streets while others must carry away dead bodies. British subjects are struck in the face on the slightest provocation.

All of these incidents took place before British and Allied subjects were interned. One day notices appeared ordering all "enemy" national to report the following morning.

They were given a few hours to settle their private affairs and were allowed to take with them only their clothing and personal belongings. The internees first were concentrated in several third-rate Chinese boarding houses.

After about two weeks all were removed to a large prison at Stanley, about four miles across from Victoria on Hongkong island. No visitors were allowed there. The plight of elderly people perhaps was worst of all.

(Previous reports reaching Chungking have given a similar picture of Hongkong under Japanese rule, and a formal denunciation of the situation was made by the British government.)

SCORE: It's 4-0 When Allies Tangle With Japanese Planes

(By Associated Press)

Allied sky fighters defending the approaches to Australia were credited officially today with scoring a 4-0 victory over Japanese "zero" planes in a battle over Port Moresby, New Guinea, while U. S. Navy torpedo boats were reported to have seriously damaged a Japanese light cruiser in the Philippines.

A bulletin from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia said United Nations airmen shot down four Japanese planes without loss to themselves at Port Moresby, and that other Allied fliers set numerous fires among wharves and buildings in an attack on Rabaul, New Britain.

Lieut.-Gen. George H. Brett, U. S. A., chief of the combined air forces in the southwest Pacific, praised the aerial defenders. He declared: "Everything is on the up and up in developing Australia as a base for long-range operations."

On the critical Burma war front, British headquarters announced that out-numbered British and Chinese troops again were forced to retreat under heavy pressure by Japanese invasion columns driving into the earth-scorched Yenangyaung oil fields in western Burma.

A New Delhi communique said the Allies completed a fighting withdrawal across the Pinchaung river "but not without losses of personnel and equipment."

The Pinchaung flows into the Irrawaddy river near the town of Yenangyaung, which Chinese reinforcements had recaptured only a few days ago.

COMMANDOS HIT FRENCH COAST IN DAWN RAID

Damage Ships; Revolt Feared In France as Germans Slay More Hostages.

Following up successful commando raids on occupied islands off the coast of Norway, these swift-moving, hard-striking units lashed out at France a few weeks ago.

They first struck at Bruneval near Le Havre, breaking up an important German radio-locater station. The next attack was at St. Nazaire, the chief U-boat base in French territory, where the commandos in the old former American destroyer Campbeltown up against a gatelock and detonated tons of explosives cached away in her hold.

The St. Nazaire raid was characterized as a huge success.

(Editor's Note. There was no indication that American troops participated with the British in this latest commando raid. But it was recalled that before leaving England last Saturday, United States Chief of Staff George C. Marshall said that the entire expeditionary force was being trained as a huge commando unit and that American troops soon would launch commando raids against Nazi-held areas of Europe.)

Nazis Slay More French Hostages

(By Associated Press)

German authorities in Paris announced the execution of more French hostages today even as France's Vichy regime was reported seeking a reprieve for 20 hostages held under death sentence at St. Nazaire where townspeople aided British commandos in their spectacular raid on that Nazi-occupied base, March 28.

The Paris announcement said the victims, described as Communists, Jews and accomplices, were shot in reprisal for alleged assassination attempts against German soldiers on April 2, 8 and 20.

Advices reaching Bern, Switzerland, said that the St. Nazaire hostages, including several prominent residents, had been sentenced to be shot but that the executions were put off as a result of Vichy's intervention.

Smoldering fires of revolt against the Nazi conquerors was reflected anew as German authorities in Paris clamped down an 11 p. m. curfew and ordered all public places closed in the occupied capital until 5 a. m. Friday.

The Germans said these measures were taken in reprisal for the assassination of a German soldier in Paris Monday night.

In the Russian campaign, Soviet dispatches reported that the Red army had broken a second hole through Finnish front lines in Karelia, northeast of Leningrad, Knifing six miles deep into positions manned by reserves.

An Associated Press correspondent who flew over the long battlefront reported that the winter snowline was rolling steadily north, laying bare a large part of the fighting arena.

The correspondent said the Soviet Caucasus, probable target of Adolf Hitler's long-awaited spring offensive was already hard and dry under a warm sun.

Coincidentally, a Berlin broadcast denied that any official Nazi spokesman ever prophesied that the German offensive would start in April, declaring the date would be "determined solely by the fuehrer."

Non-Axis reports recently have said Hitler's plans for a spring renewal of "blitz" warfare had been delayed several months by shaken morale, terrific losses in the Russian winter campaign and destructive blows delivered by the RAF against Germany's vital war foundries in the Reich.

Hitler's field headquarters asserted that German and Rumanian troops in the Donets river industrial basin, in the Ukraine, had captured a series of reinforced Soviet strongpoints, and declared that Russian attacks had been beaten off on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts.

A Russian communique, again stressing the heavy German aerial losses, reported that 891 Nazi planes had been destroyed in the period of March 22-April 18, against a loss of 289 Soviet planes.

Washington Split On Attitude To France

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— A tug-of-war was said today to be developing among policy-making officials over American policy toward the new French government.

One group favors a complete and immediate break in diplomatic relations with the government controlled by Pierre Laval. Another recommends awaiting until Laval's policy develops into pro-Axis deeds.

The return of Secretary of State Cordell Hull to his office after two and one-half months was expected by most informed diplomats to result in a "cooling off" period during which Hull will reappraise the entire Vichy situation. Hull indicated at a press conference yesterday that he believed the French people could be relied upon to control collaborationist elements, of which Laval is regarded as the outstanding exponent.

The group of officials which has distrusted the Vichy government from the start and favors an immediate break argues that Laval is dominated so completely by Germany that whatever he does will be designed to support the Axis cause and to operate against the United Nations.

The other group argues that so long as France is not a belligerent and has not given the Axis either the French fleet or bases in French Africa, relations should be maintained to avoid either of these catastrophes

Report Marshall Discussed Invasion

LONDON —(U.P.)— A possible American and British invasion of Europe was discussed in London by Gen. George C. Marshall, American chief of staff, it was indicated today by a government spokesman in the house of lords.

Lord Strabolgi urged further coordination of British and Allied war strategy.

He told the house of lords that the recent visit to England of Marshall showed a "gap" existed in present machinery for mobilizing and marshalling Allied resources

The fact that Sir Dudley Pound, chief of the British naval staff, returned to the United States with General Marshall was evidence of another "gap," Lord Strabolgi said

He said that presumably the combined chief of staff committee in Washington was concerned primarily with the war in the Pacific, and he demanded to know if there were a corresponding body for coordinating plans and advising the governments concerning the European situation.

Strabolgi also asked for a clear explanation of the respective functions of the Pacific war councils in Washington and London.

Rumor Italy Seeks Separate Peace

LONDON — (AP) — Roundabout dispatches quoting sources in contact with Italy disclosed what may prove a new phase of an Axis peace offensive today.

The News Chronicle's Ankara correspondent said that according to a "Rome diplomatic message" secret negotiations were being undertaken in Italy for a separate peace

The Lisbon correspondent of the same paper quoted a South American diplomat just arrived from Rome as saying "if the country (Italy) were not occupied by the Germans a separate peace with the Allies would be the easiest thing that could happen."

The Ankara dispatch said "Italians feel that the coming of the summer months, when the Germans will be fully occupied on the Russian front, may be the moment when Italians may safely launch their peace plans because the Germans will not be in a position to check the Italians by force.

"It's a fact that most Italians want peace at any price and Mussolini's prestige now is so low that if the royal family decided upon a peace offer neither the weakened Fascist party, nor the Germans could prevent the offer from being made."

Navy's Hero Gets Congressional Medal

While President Roosevelt shakes his hand, Mrs. Edward H O'Hare, pretty young wife of Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare of St Louis, hangs the Congressional Medal of Honor around the neck of the U. S. Navy's hero, who single-handedly shot down six Jap planes that attacked a Navy task force in the Pacific. In addition to receiving the nation's highest award for heroism at the White House ceremony, Lieutenant O'Hare was promoted to lieutenant commander by the president. Among the witnesses were Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, left, and Admiral Ernest J. King, second from left, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

Members of French Embassy Resign

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Four members of the French embassy in Washington, including a counselor and first secretary, today resigned their posts in protest against the return to power of Pierre Laval, new pro-German head of the Vichy government.

The first two to resign were Leon Marchal, counselor, and Baron James Baeyens, first secretary. They were quickly followed by Andre Fiot, vice consul, and Charles Benoit, chief of the code section of the embassy.

Fiot and Benoit have been connected with the embassy in Washington for nearly 20 years. Another resignation from the staff also is expected shortly.

Hint Churchill Might See Stalin

LONDON — (INS) — Possibility that Prime Minister Winston Churchill may go to Moscow and meet Premier Josef Stalin arose today as an official spokesman emphasized the need for the closest possible Anglo-Russian collaboration against Nazi Germany.

The suggestion that Churchill make such a trip is "worth considering," the spokesman said, but would discuss the matter no further.

He would make no comment either on the steps being taken to answer Russia's request for opening of a second front in western Europe

Meanwhile, a suggestion that a protest be registered with Japan through the Vatican concerning barbarous treatment of captured Britons by Japanese troops was discarded.

PLAN SUGAR RATIONING

10 GALLONS OF GAS A MONTH?

That's What's Being Studied as Rationing Limit For Nation's Motorists.

However, railroads are faced with labor shortages and the need to switch locomotives to other uses so that the amount of gasoline moved overland will probably diminish during the next few weeks according to informed quarters in Washington.

In addition, some of the cars now carrying gasoline to so-called shortage areas on the east and west coast will have to be diverted to carrying heavy fuel oil for munitions factories.

The current curtailment of one-third in deliveries of gasoline to retail filling stations has failed to solve the shortage, WPB spokesmen stated. There is now talk among responsible officials of cutting deliveries by 50 or even 60 or 75 per cent. Any further cut, it was said, will make rationing inevitable.

The gasoline shortage is expected to remain serious throughout the summer and fall months. On April 17, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L Ickes and Civilian Supply Director Leon Henderson issued a joint statement urging the public to eliminate non-essential consumption of motor fuel.

The appeal, it is admitted failed to cut down non-essential gasoline consumption and as a consequence officials are now working on the rationing order. One government official said that the gas rationing would be "awfully severe and may be much more severe than anyone has ever expected."

War agencies in Washington also were planning to issue orders freezing rents in many areas. The next order to be issued will freeze rents in many large cities of the country in an effort to help stabilize the cost of living. With rationing, price freezing and rent controls, war production officials warned that government control of American economy soon will be the most drastic in the history of the United States

BIG CROWD ON HAND FOR NEW DRAFT SEND-OFF

Another 5,000 Turn Out To Cheer Selectees; New Group Leaves Tomorrow.

drew out—the first left at 8:17 and the other two a minute later. There was considerable applause for the stiring martial music provided by the Mansfield Senior high school band, and there was the period of hushed silence and bared heads as the anthem was played.

Considerable confusion which occurred at the March 24 send-off was averted today by parking the buses in the middle of the street. Traffic on Park avenue west between Walnut and Mulberry was blocked off, and the crowd jammed the street and sidewalks of the entire block-long area.

The groups leaving this week will be the first to be affected by the Army's new system of inducting and assigning to service immediately those selectees who meet physical requirements. Some who had previously made requests of their draft board for some time to clean up their affairs, will receive immediate furloughs running up to as long as 15 days.

Boards Get Series Of New Draft Calls

A call for a large contingent of selectees to report for induction the middle of next month has been received by each of the three Richland county selective service boards, officials announced today.

The latest call will make the next four weeks a busy time for draft boards, and for the Richland Victory Civic Committee, which plans a civic send-off like that held this morning for each departure in the future

The present schedule now calls for a group to leave tomorrow, another on Friday, and a small group made up from all three boards toward the end of this month. Then, early in May, there will be a small colored contingent leaving, and about the middle of May there will be large groups departing on three successive days in answer to the latest calls received by the boards.

Some of today's departing selectees were drawn from 1-B lists, those who previously had received deferments for physical defects. Draft board officials here anticipate that a somewhat larger percentage than in the past—perhaps 25 per cent, will not meet the present physical requirements and will return to Mansfield.

Names of those accepted and inducted will be published by The News-Journal as soon as they are received by each of the three local draft boards from the Army induction center to which each group was sent.

Another group of young men from the area left this morning for service with Uncle Sam. They were 12 men, six from Mansfield, who left for the U. S Naval Training station at Great Lakes, Ill., to start their recruit training

Furloughs To Be Given New Draftees

Richland county's three contingents leaving for induction into the Army this week, and those leaving in the future, may now expect furloughs shortly after being sworn in, to wind up their personal affairs.

Under a new policy described by the War department as "greatly liberalized," furloughs up to 15 days will be granted on request, to begin not later than five days after induction.

Requests for such leave should be made in advance to local draft boards, it was emphasized.

Under the new procedure, men accepted for military service will be sworn in immediately upon their induction at reception centers, with the result that they will not be eligible during their furloughs to enlist in the Navy or Marine corps.

The War department advised that the high rate of physical rejections by Army examiners made it undesirable for every selectee to assume that his order for induction would mean immediate military service.

In event of any doubt a man receiving induction orders should not release his position, or wind up his affairs, but should file a furlough request with his draft board.

GIRL DESERTS COLLEGE CREW FOR MEDICINE

Co-ed Who Lent Lungs To Oarsmen Changes Schools.

(By United Press)

PORTLAND, Ore.— When you get down to a girl coxswain, you're short of manpower, but Reed college recalls those days as plentiful ones after surveying this year's crew possibilities.

Mary Russell, 20-year-old Bremerton, Wash., co-ed who lent her lungs to the crew and her limbs to national magazine art as last year Reed's female shell boss, was missing when the rowers turned out for practice.

The war caused her to take up the study of medicine, and she transferred to the University of Washington.

"If things keep up," crew manager Barry Brownell said, "we may have a rough time collecting even a female crew."

Reed's peacetime troubles were enough, what with the belief of the administration that the school should exercise brain. The going got tough when shipyards began paying up to $90 weekly for labor, and a little brain exercise resulted in a loss of enrollment.

But after Dec. 7, athletes took an awful kicking around. Even the co-eds became defense minded. Those who couldn't nurse could knit.

To make it worse, the Portland Rowing club, which used to provide Reed's opposition on the Willamette river home course, lost its brawn to the armed forces and announced it wouldn't put its shells in the water this season.

"And that means we won't have a prayer of getting a cast-off shell," Brownell said.

"Anyhow, we'll probably get down to an all-girl crew and then probably to a girl scull."

NAVY ANSWERS MANY QUERIES

War Expands Less Publicized Activities of Armed Service Branch.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The war has brought an expansion in the less publicized activities of the navy, such as:

Giving advice to the lovelorn.

Allaying fears of wives about their husbands in the service.

Here are excerpts from some of the hundreds of letters received by the navy:

"Last week my son who is in the navy sent me his picture. It has been worrying me much, as he does not look well and is so thin. How much milk does the navy allow each man? My son is used to having a lot and I hope he is able to get it now."

"I would appreciate it if you could trace my boy friend. No one seems to have heard from him since Nov. 24."

"My brother is a naval aviator and I want to get him a birthday present. I selected an overnight bag but am wondering whether a suitcase to hold uniforms would be better."

"Our son enlisted a week ago Saturday in the navy. He has been told that the first three weeks they are treated terribly (quarantine period). What do they do to the boys the first three weeks that is so bad, or is it just talk?"

"Since I wrote my first letter I have heard from my husband. I am trying to decide whether I should leave here and try to join him when his ship comes to port. I am in the same quandary, I suppose, that thousands of navy wives are."

"Perhaps you might help us to get in touch with our nephew. We have written to him regularly and sent him the home town papers, and they must have reached him or they would have been returned to us. He has always been a good boy and we do not wish to write to his commanding officer."

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief!

If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation — simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

NEW 1942 OLDSMOBILES FOR SALE

*TO THE FOLLOWING PEOPLE

IF YOU CAN BUY A NEW CAR, BE SURE TO MAKE IT AN OLDSMOBILE—AND HERE'S WHY:

1 You want a car that will last for years and years. Oldsmobile's traditional quality, proved ruggedness and durability are your best bet that you won't "run out of transportation" before the war is over.

2 You want a car that will conserve vital war-time supplies. Oldsmobile is designed to give you real gas-saving, oil-saving performance . . . Also to provide greater tire life, because the size of Oldsmobile tires is correctly related to the weight and power of the car.

3 You want proved reliability. Many Oldsmobiles are still delivering trouble-free transportation after more than a hundred-thousand miles of owner service.

4 You want a car backed by an organization that will "carry on" and maintain service through any emergency. Oldsmobile is America's oldest car manufacturer and a Division of General Motors—the world's largest automotive organization.

5 You want a car that's right up to the minute in design; that gives you the very latest features. Oldsmobile, with its Hydra-Matic Drive, is known everywhere as the "Car of the Future."

HYDRA-MATIC

. . . Ideal for War-Time Driving

If speed limits are restricted, Hydra-Matic enables you to go places in a hurry, without exceeding "40!" It saves gas, reduces engine wear. And it's easier on tires. No transmission in Oldsmobile history has been more durable! Nearly 200,000 owners stand squarely behind it.

*PROVIDED, OF COURSE, THAT THEY SECURE FROM THE LOCAL RATIONING BOARD A CERTIFICATE OF PURCHASE WHICH O. P. A. SAYS THEY MAY SECURE, BECAUSE THEY ARE CONTRIBUTING TO THE WAR EFFORT

Executives, engineers, technicians, and workers requiring transportation to or within factories, power plants, transportation or communication facilities, farms, lumber camps, mines, military or naval establishments, etc.; when the work is essential, directly or indirectly, to the prosecution of the war.

No Peace On Hitler's Terms

AS HAPPENED several times during the World war, when there was an appearance of German ascendency, a Nazi "peace offensive" is expected within the next few months, possibly by early summer.

Any such Hitler-inspired proposal will doubtless meet as speedy and definite a turndown as did the kaiser's peace maneuvers twenty-five years ago.

However long the war may last, and however much peace may be desired, it is quite obvious that any peace terms which Hitler or his Axis associates would present, on the basis of present appearance of success in Europe and in the Far East, would be intolerable to the free peoples of the world.

With the war being carried more directly to Germany and to Japan it can be understood that something in the way of a peace gesture might be effective in strengthening morale in those countries by appearing to place blame on the United Nations for continuance of the war.

An effort to build up hatred against Great Britain was seen in Pierre Laval's first public statement as chief of the Vichy government when he charged that the British "abandoned us in battle, tried to destroy our fleet, killed our sailors and starved our people."

But France is not yet lost to freedom and civilization. A vast majority of the French people are true to their country and have faith in their liberation.

Our government, abandoning its forlorn hope in the Vichy regime, now clearly acknowledges the situation and faces the problem It warns Americans against being misled by Nazi efforts to divide our people and the French, and acknowledges the "sovereign jurisdiction" of the French people over the territory of France and its foreign possessions. It reminds them that:

"Only by the total destruction of the present criminal regime in Germany, and by the complete defeat of the armies of Germany and of the dictatorships which have allied themselves with Germany, can that hope be realized." It warns the loyal French against "that handful of Frenchmen who, in contempt for the high tradiion of liberty and individual freedom which has made France great, have attempted to prostitute their country to that very regime in Germany which is bent upon the permanent enslavement of France."

Until the tide of war has been turned to the sure accomplishment of Axis defeat, no favorable consideration dare be given to Hitler-dictated peace proposals.

Month for Physical Check-up

ONE of April's little emphasized activities this year has been its designation as "Cancer Control month."

For the past several years April's thirty days have been given to a campaign of education concerning this disease, with a suggestion that all persons over the age of 35 have a thorough physical examination this month.

So many other things have engaged public attention that only an occasional reference is seen to the subject of cancer control.

It is now known that when cancer is detected and treated in an early stage it can be cured, but many people do not discover that they have the disease until it is too late.

The idea of having a complete physical check-up this month is a good one—even if cancer is not suspected.

Better Return Stolen Bicycles

FREQUENCY of reports to the police that bicycles have been stolen indicates need for stricter enforcement of the bicycle licensing ordinance passed by city council several years ago.

The license record provides ready means for identification of stolen bicycles and also places greater responsibility on individual riders.

Past experience has shown that bicycle thefts are usually committed by children who have little realization of the seriousness of such an offense, and it may be doubted if there is any instance in which a parent does not quickly learn about the occurrence. Common honesty would require, in such instances, that the bicycle be immediately returned to the owner, in which case it is unlikely there would be any prosecution.

It is also suggested to bicycle owners that a simple chain and lock device, for use whenever a bicyle is left unguarded, will go far toward discouraging theft.

Senatorial Economy Hinted

CRITICISM does accomplish something. Congressmen took to heart the wave of criticism caused by the now-repealed legislation giving themselves pensions. They are looking more closely at projects making life easier for themselves.

A pending appropriation bill contained a provision giving every senator at least one added $1.800-a-year clerk. The senate, in a burst of economy, has sent this back to committee for reconsideration.

Hard-working senators should have help—and they do. Considering that so many have used allowances for clerk hire to get their own relatives on the government payroll, most people will be satisfied if senators work a little harder and spend a little less, as others are required to do.

Here It Comes Again

AN ARGENTINIAN has an invention by which he thinks 20 per cent of the gas used in ordinary motor cars may be saved. It utilizes exhaust gases to reduce fuel consumption.

This is all right if Hitler doesn't get it. The United Nations are not too keen at the present moment on such inventions coming out of Argentina.

It will not matter very much who has it, however, if it is not used to better advantage than the smoke-consuming devices which might make our cities beautiful and healthful, but are not used enough to save much coal or prevent much dirt.

Hint: A farm in southern Ohio had a lot of scrap metal, mostly discarded farm tools, which the three brothers who owned it refused to sell to the government. It has now been seized, and paid for at the rate of four dollars a ton. From it the government has realized enough to build ten tanks.

They also serve who take care of things at home.

ONE GO, ALL GO

War Taboos Old Rule of Seamen

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — This business of the captain going down with his ship has got to stop. About 90-odd times out of a hundred it is more important to save the captain than to save any other person aboard—man, woman or child, the old doctrine of "women and children first" to the contrary notwithstanding.

It is just another case of the war turning ordinary things upside down. In normal maritime life there is an oversupply of captains. Many men with masters' papers are working as first, second, and sometimes even third mates, just to get a job.

But too many men capable of navigating ships—of directing them safely from one port to another—of acting quickly in emergencies—of maneuvering a ship, for instance, under torpedo or bomb attack—are being killed.

* * *

ADMIRAL EMORY S. LAND, of the maritime commission, is crying aloud for a speed up in ship construction, so that the lifeline to Britain can be kept in operation. He is absolutely right, and should be getting more vigorous backing when he runs up against certain difficulties, particularly of the union labor variety.

But it is also necessary to have men capable of commanding those ships. It would seem that the problem of crews was just as vital, but the business of running ships, for the period of the war anyway, has turned to mass production methods.

It is not quite as simple as an assembly line, but it approaches it. The idea of each man being trained to do just one thing, almost as simple as tightening a bolt, is carried out in essential.

Nor is the maritime commission to be criticized for the shortage in competent captains. It established schools several years ago, and really has done a pretty good job in training young men as navigators. So far as the engineers are concerned most of the new ships have the old reciprocating engines, which means that almost any man who has had any experience whatever with engines, in saw mills, on farms, in small plants, can learn very quickly to perform the necessary duties.

Firemen present even an easier problem. Many owners of office buildings have been learning this to their embarrassment, for men whose only experience has been turning valves in oil-burning heating units of big buildings are now working on ships, with much better pay, of course, as should be the case in view of the risk.

Incidentally there is no disposition anywhere to criticize the pay schedules of the men who go down to the sea in ships these days. Some of the union rules have caused problems, but these related more to the question of interfering with a proper flow of recruits than to wages.

* * *

MOST of the torpedoings of merchants ships off the Atlantic coast have not been as heavy in their toll of human lives as in naval warfare, where in so many instances—the cruiser Houston and the battle cruiser Hood for instance—there were practically no survivors.

But something ought to be done to impress everybody that it is a military necessity—vital to the winning of the war—to save the captain if possible. Men can be trained fairly quickly in navigation, but there is tremendous value in the experience which guides a good captain in emergencies.

And there is not only the lifeline to Britain to be kept open—there is the much longer one to Australia!

Man About Manhattan

Outposts At Home

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It might have been Kyangin, or Sintang—only, it wasn't. It was New York. But the mountains were there at the other end of the rolling fields, where the grass was first brown, and then green, and in the open you could see the pursuit ships, fully gunned and fueled.

As I say, it might have been an outpost . . . As a matter of fact, that's what it was . . . You couldn't see the anti-aircraft guns . . . You couldn't see the mechanics and the tools and the equipment . . . But you could see the pursuit ships, out in the open, where they could get into the air in a hurry . . .

* * *

THEY went up and they darted away like angry wasps and they came back. They do this day and night . . . They do this without cessation. The air above this field quivers and tingles with wireless reports every minute of the day . . . A report comes in . . . An order is given . . . Pilots appear from nowhere — probably out of the ground—and fling their ships into the sky . . . The maneuvering is constant . . . It approximates the conditions in the Pacific . . . As I say, there are no hangars . . . Hangars would be a burden . . . It takes a lot of time to get a ship out of a hangar in an emergency . . . But don't worry . . . No enemy ship could get to these ships while they are on the ground . . . They would be up there long before an enemy ship could even come close . . . It's outpost . . . It's war . . . On the map it's still New York . . . But in essence, it's Fakfak, and Palembang.

WHEN you hear soldiers on leave talking about armored cows and bubble dancers, don't think they are talking about mechanized equipment and Sally Rand . . . They're talking army talk, which, as Pat O'Brien points out, when translated goes like this:

An armored cow is a can of milk . . . Army strawberries are prunes . . . A bubble-dancer is a dish-washer . . . Blind flying is a blind date . . . Barracks 13 is the guardhouse . . . A refugee is a new recruit . . . A Jeeter is a lieutenant . . . A hell cat is a member of the bugle and drum corps . . . When Uncle Sam gives a party, that's pay day . . . Better Neighbors.

Mutual interdependence is drawing Mexico and the United States closer together. Distrust and envy die hard. So does superciliousness. We two neighbors do not fully understand each other yet. But we are learning.

Strangely enough, the betterment rests in part upon our sudden discovery that the smaller republic can do something important for us. So long as our country was the exclusive benefactor, the sensitive Mexicans knew we felt our superiority, and they resented it.

Mexico still needs us. But today she is our sole source of graphite, antimony and mercury. She supplies us with vanadium, tungsten, some tin, hides, zinc, copper and sisal and henequen fibers. These are war needs. Now the Latinos deal with us on a basis resembling equality. So relations improve.—Cleveland Press.

War Labor Board Controversy Due for Showdown On Policies

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—This is a momentous week for the War Labor Board.

It's been kept under cover, but this key war agency is in the throes of a serious internal clash which is due for a showdown any day now. The result may be an explosion that will blow the lid off.

The issue is over the charge that certain employer members of the board are deliberately stalling disposal of major labor cases affecting war production.

Precipitator of the showdown is Dean Wayne Morse of Oregon university law school, two-fisted, plain-talking public representative on the board. Principal target of Morse's fire is Walter C. Teagle, tall, bulky chairman of the board of Standard Oil of New Jersey and an employer member of WLB.

The long-smoldering controversy came to a head some days ago in connection with the International Harvester case. This case had been pending for nearly a year. Finally Morse demanded that the WLB render a decision, threatening to resign and issue a statement bluntly telling why he quit unless the board acted.

Under this challenge the board got down to business. After most of a day of dickering, Teagle finally proposed that the matter be held over the following week-end on the possibility that a split decision could be averted. This was agreed to.

During that week-end most of the employer members of the WLB had a secret pow-wow at which they debated what stand to take on "union security," the basic issue involved in the Harvester and a number of other pending major cases. Participants in this conference later told other WLB members that an agreement on the compromise "union membership maintenance" formula could have been reached but for Teagle.

It was stated that the oilman vigorously objected to accepting this proposal and blocked an accord.

When the WLB resumed deliberations on the Harvester case, Teagle again proposed a delay. He urged that the controversy be returned to the complaining union and the company for another attempt at negotiation.

Note: — WLB members claim that Fowler McCormick, head of Harvester, expressed private willingness to accept "union membership maintenance" in his plants.

* * *

The Showdown.

MORSE blew up at the Teagle plan and waded in with both fists flying.

He bluntly accused the oilman and his employer associates of dilatory tactics that were hampering the war effort. Morse concluded by charging them with acting not as impartial arbiters but as management agents.

The scorching blast drew indignant protests from Teagle and George Mead, president of the Mead Paper Co. They contended that their function was to represent management. Morse's reply to this argument was to quote a statement made by another management member, Roger Lapham, president of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., that the WLB was the "Supreme Court of war labor problems."

"It was my understanding that we all agreed with that," said Morse. "Now you tell me that you aren't judicially-minded arbiters, but special pleaders. If that's the way this board is to operate then you can count me out."

Morse had his way. The board issued a "union membership maintenance" decision by a split vote of 8 to 4—the four public and four labor members making the majority and Teagle and the three other employer members the dissenting minority.

But this didn't end the matter. His dander up, Morse demanded an immediate showdown on the contention that Teagle's group should operate as employer spokesmen.

"Let's have it out once and for all." Morse declared, "just what our policy is going to be—whether we sit as a judicial body or as groups representing special interests. That goes for labor as well as management. I'm not interested in representing any special group here. I believe we should all act as representatives of the government of the United States and decide cases solely on the facts as presented to us."

Coming on the heels of the excitement over the year-old Harvester case, this bare-knuckle challenge was too much for the other board members to tackle. Pleading for time to think the matter over, Mead prevailed on Morse to postpone action on his demand until this week.

What happens next is anybody's guess.

Note: — The same day that Teagle voted against the Harvester decision, the National Labor Relations Board issued an order directing Standard Oil of New Jersey to "disestablish three company-dominated employe associations."

Upset Champ.

FORMER heavyweight champ Gene Tunney is the navy's athletic director, but on the basis of an incident that occurred the other day it looks as if he could do with a little more personal practice of what he preaches.

Tunney isn't telling it, but he was almost floored by Vice President Henry Wallace, older and much slighter built than the dapper ex-prize fighter.

It was all in fun, and happened while the two men were posing for a picture in Wallace's office. The customary hand-shaking pose didn't satisfy the photographer.

"Let's get some action into this," he urged. In an effort to co-operate, Wallace asked Tunney,

"Have you ever tried handwrestling?"

"What's that?" inquired the former champ.

"Oh, we used to do it all the time when I was a youngster in Iowa," said Wallace. "You stand toe to toe, clasp hands, and try to pull the other fellow over. Here, let me show you."

The next thing Tunney knew, he was spinning headlong across the floor in the direction of a grandfather's clock. He just missed the clock and fetched up against a table, which he grabbed to regain his balance.

Grinning sheepishly, he said: "I thought we were just going to pose that way. I didn't know you meant business."

"I'm extremely sorry," apologized Wallace, who keeps in top physical trim by playing tennis every morning and walking to work.

"You're sorry, Mr. Vice President!" exclaimed the cameraman. "Say, I just missed one of the best pictures of my life. That would have been a sensation."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Back of those little columns of temperatures and rainfall data in our daily paper lie some 128 years of fascinating history. It's told in a neat 222-page typewritten report with a pretty discouraging title: "List of Climatological Records In the National Archives."

The first nation-wide weather reporting system was set up by two army doctors, Surgeon-General Joseph Lovell and Dr. James Tilton, in 1814. They wanted to find out whether climate influenced the health of soldiers!

* * *

ARMY surgeons at every post and fort were equipped with weather instruments. The observations were carried out faithfully as a whole, although Indian raids interfered once in a while. "Owing to the threatened outbreak of the Wallapais," read an early report, "the rain gage was abandoned for several days and was only visited the second day after the rains."

Meantime James P. Espy, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Joint Committee on Meteorology of the American Philosophical society and the Benjamin Franklin Institute, was developing a system of 110 voluntary observers.

Seeing the need for a nation-wide reporting system, Espy in 1842 began establishing himself in Washington as the "national meteorologist." A writer of the day recalls that his salary was covered by riders to "one appropriation bill after another, army, civil and diplomatic, naval, legislative, executive and judicial," attached by his friends in congress.

When the Smithsonian Institution was founded in 1846, Espy got a real opportunity to put his idea to work. He and Joseph Henry, first secretary of the institution, developed a chain of observers reporting daily by telegraph.

* * *

BUT the need got beyond the means of either the army medical department or the Smithsonian Institution, and in 1869 popular demand led to the setting up of a federal weather service. Col. Albert J. Myer, political-wise chief signal officer of the army, saw an opportunity to maintain in peacetime the department he had organized during the Civil war and succeeded in having the work assigned to the signal corps.

However, Myer was not merely power-hungry. The weather service under his direction became a real forecasting service. Its predecessors, for lack of facilities, had had to content themselves with collecting information intended to draw a broad picture of American weather so that westward-moving farmers, for instance, would know where to find suitable crop climates.

Gradually the farm bloc in congress (they had one even then) became dissatisfied with the way the weather service was faring under army rule—and the army didn't like the way the signal corps was forgetting all about signalling. So in 1890 the service was transferred to the department of agriculture, where it remained until 1940, when the importance of its work to aviation brought about its transfer to the department of commerce.

A Farmer's Diary

Boy Scout's Story

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I OVERTOOK a boy in the uniform of a Scout. He had a canvas sack across his back, a red bandanna and a regulation hat. He was hiking along at a good clip, but alone, so I stopped him and asked him to ride.

"How far are you going?" I wondered.

"I'm headed for the Indian mounds about Fredericktown and those historic mounds south of Newark, Ohio. I'll spend the day, and come home on the bus tomorrow. I may get some things to add to my collection of Indian relics."

"The flint hill, near where they made the arrows will be worth seeing," I told him. "What else do you like to do?"

"All athletics—especially baseball. Our gang plays every day the weather's fit all summer. You've heard of Lou Gehrig?"

"Yes," I said. "He was a wonderful player—he died of infantile paralysis, didn't he?"

"I heard a peach of a story about him," said my young friend. "One time, a boy lay dying of infantile paralysis in a St. Louis hospital. His doctor asked him if there was anything he wanted, before he passed away. The kid looked downcast and then he told the doc that Lou Gehrig was going to be in town that day to play baseball, and if he could only see him he believed he'd get better. The doctor almost bawled and hurried out.

"In about two hours, he brought Gehrig to the boy's bedside. Was the kid happy! The boy told Gehrig, if he'd promise to hit a homer, he thought he'd get well. Gehrig touched the sick boy's thin hand and said 'I promise.'

"'If I do get well,' the kid told Gehrig, 'I'll do something for you, some day.'

"Well, Gehrig hit two homers, and the boy shouted when he heard the news. It was the turning point, and the boy got well. It took him several years, but he was interested in airplanes, and became a pilot, over France. He won a medal for skill and bravery in the air corps. He was in France when Lou Gehrig died. After the armistice, on the way back to America, he took sick. The doctor told him he wouldn't get home alive, after all, and asked if he had any last request.

"The young pilot asked for his coat and took out of it his medal, and a piece of money. 'When you get to the United States,' he said, 'put this medal on Lou Gehrig's grave. Spend the money for flowers and put them on each side. I wanted to do it myself—'.

300 EXPECTED AT LUCAS FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL

7 Schools To Be Represented at All-County Program Friday Evening.

LUCAS—Appearing on the program of the Richland county school music festival, which will be held in the new Lucas auditorium Friday evening, will be more than 300 students from seven high and grade schools in the county.

The festival program, which will feature an all-county high school band of more than 125 pieces and an all-county chorus of more than 200 voices, is expected to be one of the most outstanding musical events in the history of Richland county school activities.

The program will also include an array of vocal and instrumental numbers to be presented by various school music organizations in the county.

Sponsoring the festival will be the Music Education Society of Richland county, composed of the music instructors of all schools in the county school system, of which Don Parfitt, Lucas, is president; J. T. Weber, Madison, is vice president and Forrest Neal, of Bellville, is secretary-treasurer.

Opening the festival program the all-county band, directed by Paul Braden, of Lexington, will play "God Bless America" (Berlin.) Under the direction of J. T. Weber the band will play the "Student Prince Overture" (Romberg). Forrest Neal will direct the band's rendering of "El Capitan March" (Sousa).

The East Mansfield grade school choir, under the direction of Edna Dean, will sing three numbers "Carmencita" (Ar. Krone), "Cradle" (Brahms) and "Czech Dance Song" (Ar Krone).

"Trumpeteers Three" (Johnson) will be played by the Union high school trumpet trio. Glorene Hale, Marie Holzworth and Richard Gramley.

Two numbers, the "Washington Post March" (Sousa) and the "Aurora Overture" (Yoder) will be presented by the Madison high school band under the direction of Mr. Weber.

The Lexington high school string ensemble, composed of Arlene Schwan, Joan Altman, Dorothy Auker and Gloria McLaughlin, accompanied by Mrs. Byron Carmean, will play "Dance of the Spirits" from "Orpheus" (Gluck) and "Waltz in A flat" (Grahms).

Under the direction of Don Parfitt the Lucas high school a'capella choir will sing "All in an April Evening" (Roberton) and "Lord, I Want to Be a Christian" (Ryder).

The Bellville high school band, directed by Forrest Neal, will play "Rustucion" (Fronking) and "Queen City March" (Boorn).

Concluding the festival program the all-county chorus of 200 voices will sing "Bless Thou the Lord" (Ippolito-Ivanoff) and "O, Soldier, Soldier," an English folk song, under the direction of Mr. Parfitt.

Directed by Theodore Groman, of Union high school, the chorus will sing "Dear Land of Home" (Sibelius) and "The Star Spangled Banner" (Key-Smith).

Participating in the music festival will be students from Butler, Bellville, Lexington, Madison, Union and Lucas high schools and the East Mansfield grade school.

Prof. F .W. R. Behrens, Medina county school music director, will serve as official critic for the festival.

Scheduled to start promptly at 8 p. m., the festival will be open to the public.

CLUB SPEAKER

GALION—State Treasurer Don Ebright, Akron, spoke to members of the Kiwanis club Tuesday noon at the Hotel Talbott on the subject of the state government's participation in the civilian defense program. He stated that the state government is attempting full cooperation within its existing agencies.

Warning against the prospect of inflation, Ebright said that the rising prices could easily increase the cost of the war 50 per cent. He urged citizens to participate in the purchase of defense stamps and bonds in order to give as much aid as possible to help pay for the war with present earnings. "Only in this manner" said the treasurer, "can the government win the financial peace following the war."

COURT NEWS IN ASHLAND COUNTY

ASHLAND — A session of the Ashland county grand jury, which began yesterday in Ashland common pleas court, is being continued today. About 13 cases are to be considered. Testimony in six cases was heard yesterday. J. F. Church of Loudonville, former state representative, is foreman of the grand jury.

Suit of Benja in H. Covert against Mrs. D. D. Macklin, involving possession of Flxible company, has been settled and dismissed in common pleas court. Covert sought return from Mrs. Macklin of what was originally 26 shares of Flxible company stock which he assigned to her in 1932 in payment of a $60 indebtedness. Covert charges that Mrs. Macklin now holds for the original 26 shares of stock, 360 shares of common stock and 18 shares of Class B preferred with a market value of $2,250 and a book value of $8,200; that in addition she has received dividends amounting to much more than the indebtedness for which they were originally received. Mrs. Macklin denies any right of Covert in the stock alleging that she was given it outright for wages owed her by Covert as a clerk in his drug store in Loudonville.

Two divorces have been granted in common pleas court on grounds of wilful absence for more than three years. They are: Walter W. Stair from Miriam Stair; and Levi Jones from Ollie Belle Jones.

A divorce has been granted Grace E. Kruger in her suit against James W. Kruger on grounds of gross neglect. Custody of a minor child was awarded the plaintiff with the defendant to pay $4 per week support.

D. E. Ringler has been granted a divorce from Ruth Ringler on grounds of extreme cruelty.

The following suits have been dismissed in common pleas court: Central Acceptance corporation against J M. Moller: Henry Lavine vs. Carl W Brubaker.

ARMY CONVERTS FAIRGROUNDS TO TRAINING CAMP

Several Hundred Soldiers To Get Engineer Instruction at Bucyrus Shops.

BUCYRUS—Crawford county's fairgrounds is rapidly being turned into a virtual city in itself as the United States Army is preparing for several hundred soldiers who are coming here within the next few weeks to begin engineer training at the New York Central Railroad shops.

By May 25 twenty-two new buildings are to be erected on the grounds, mostly along the western edge of the fairgrounds. These 22 buildings will include barracks, a first aid station, hospital, canteen, recreation hall and other buildings necessary for a camp accommodating the several hundred who will come here from a Mississippi camp.

Construction work is in charge of Capt. Walter Bleil, who came here 10 days ago and let contracts to local contractors for repairing several of the old fairgrounds buildings and for lighting equipment.

New floors have been placed in three of the old buildings to be used as sleeping quarters and the concrete building, leading exhibit building during fair week, will be made into a mess hall.

New windows and doors have also been added to the repaired buildings.

Fifty-five stoves have arrived to be placed in the various dormitories in addition to eight kitchen ranges for the concrete building.

More than 1,000 feet of sewer and water pipes have been strung through the grounds and two fire hydrants have been added, both of which have been tested by the fire department.

Contract for construction of the new buildings will probably be let late this week to a Columbus contractor who was low bidder when bids were asked last week.

Nature of the training will be considered a military secret.

An advance official staff of 19 men headed by Lieut. Col. Lester I. Meek arrived in Bucyrus last week-end to await the arrival of the first soldiers. The soldiers are to come in groups.

GUILD MEETS

SHELBY — Regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Shelby Memorial hospital was held Tuesday at the First Church of Christ.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

SPRING PARTY GIVEN BY SOROSIS TUESDAY

Members of Mansfield Junior Sorosis Club Are Guests for Meeting and Program at Women's Club.

ANNUAL spring party of the Mansfield Sorosis was held last evening at the Women's Club with members of the Junior Sorosis club as guests. Dessert was served to 26 members and 10 guests. Hostesses were members of the program committee: Mrs. Milo W. Hieber, chairman, Mrs. C. L. Allen, Mrs. H. L. Creveling, Mrs. Earle Paxton and Mrs. Fred Troll.

Mrs. S. D. Hoover, president, welcomed the group and spoke in tribute to two members, Mrs. F. W. Bloor and Mrs. F. M. Remy, who have died since the last meeting. Mrs. Hieber presided for the program.

After the Sorosis song was sung by the group, Mrs. John Angle presented a paper entitled "Our Yesterdays," which told the origin and story of Sorosis. Accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. E. Wygant, a trio comprised of Mrs. Troll, Mrs. L. R. McGinty and Mrs. W. J. Bishop, rendered "Sing Me To Sleep."

Mrs. Creveling introduced Mrs. Harriet Hedges Princehorn, who spoke on "The Lure of Antiques." Mrs. Princehorn, who appeared in costume, showed some of the pieces in her collection. She told the history of early glassware and exhibited lamps and lanterns. Early American furniture was described and the speaker showed pictures of Currier and Ives, discussing them and various other types of antiques.

Interspersed among Mrs. Princehorn's descriptions were many interesting experiences dealing with her travels in hunting for antiques.

A lovely arrangement of spring flowers decorated the tea table which was presided over by Mrs. Princehorn and Mrs. Hoover. The club planned to have a picnic in the summer. Regular meetings will be resumed next fall.

Agenda Bible Class Members Hold Meeting

Members of the Agenda Bible class of the First Methodist church met with their teacher, Mrs. Della Richardson, 29 Penn avenue, Tuesday afternoon. Seventeen members and two guests, Mrs. Myrtle Chamberlain and Mrs. John Stonebrook, were in attendance. Mrs. Anna Rice conducted the devotions.

Memorial services were conducted for the late W. P. Close, former superintendent of the Sunday school, and the late Miss Margaret Simpson. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table attractively decorated with patriotic appointments and spring flowers. Mrs. Fred Frizzell presided at the table. Plans were discussed for a picnic to be held in July.

Sorority Holds Business Social Meeting Tuesday

The Misses Grace Crotty and Dorthy Byrne and Mrs. Harvey Hauserman were hostesses last evening to Alpha Pi Sigma sorority for a meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. During the short business session the committee for the Mothers' Day breakfast was announced. It is comprised of Mrs. L. K. Sorgen, Mrs. Hauserman, the Misses Byrne and Crotty and Ann Zimmerman.

Chester Porterfield gave a talk on the Civic Music association program for the coming season. Four tables of bridge were in play. High score prize was won by Mrs. C. E. Picknor. There will be a meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on May 5.

Honor Teacher With Party

A pleasant surprise to Mrs. W. C. B. Harris was the birthday party given for her Monday evening by the Golden Rule class of the First Lutheran church of which she is teacher. Seventy-two members and friends were in attendance for the party which which was given in the assembly room.

The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers, birthday cakes and favors. Talks were given by Rev. Grover Swoyer, Reverend Johnson and Louis Cashell, Sunday school superintendent. Mrs. Harris also spoke. She was presented with many lovely gifts from the guests.

Dinner Given on 'Mustered In' Anniversary

Forty-fourth anniversary of "Mustered In" day was observed by the Spanish War Veterans and auxiliary with a dinner in Memorial hall at 6:30 o'clock last evening. Tables were attractively decorated in red, white and blue.

After the pledge of allegiance was recited by the group, the business session was opened with Commander Thomas Brown in charge. Speakers for the evening were Past Commander J. G. Wallace, whose subject was "The War With Spain," Rev. Grover Swoyer, and Judge Charles H. Huston. Rev. Swoyer's address was about all wars, with special emphasis on the Spanish-American war and what it meant.

Judge Huston spoke on the war with Spain, the first World war and the second World war and what it means to people who love liberty, freedom and America.

The auxiliary will have an all-day meeting and quilting on April 30. Next regular meeting will be held on May 5.

W. C. T. U. Has Regular Meet At Harris Home

Mrs. W. C. B. Harris, 250 West Third street, entertained members of the Frances Willard chapter of the W. C. T. U. at her home Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Harris, vice president, conducted the business session. Miss Katherine Hartman gave a short talk on the importance of purchasing war bonds.

During the program papers were given by Mrs. W. E. Shane, Mrs. Blanche Stotler, and Mrs. J. W. Waddell. Miss Maude Stewart led the devotions. The next regular session will be an all-day meeting on May 19 at the home of Mrs. George Hoover, 168 Penn avenue. A covered-dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Carr Kindergarten To Hold Open House

The public is invited to attend open house at the Carr Kindergarten, 611 Bernard avenue, on Thursday and Friday of this week. Mrs. John Carr is in charge of the school. During the morning regular school work will be done. A display of school art and handwork will feature the afternoon and evening. Children who attend the school will also display tin foil and tubes which they have collected during the year and which will be presented to the Junior Red Cross at the close of the school year.

TOURIST CLUB HEARS DR. B. M. HATHAWAY

Pathologist at Mansfield General Hospital Speaks on "Bacteriology"; Club Women Discuss "Antique Glass."

WHEN the Tourist club held its last meeting of the year on Tuesday, the guest speaker was Dr. Burr M. Hathaway, pathologist at Mansfield General hospital. Mrs. B. W. Forkner was hostess at the Women's Club. Twenty-two members were in attendance.

Dr. Hathaway's subject was "Bacteriology." He confined his lecture to a discussion of infection and immunity or the conflict between bacteria and "the host" which is man or animal. In telling of the action of bacteria, the speaker gave the morphological classification and discussed pathogenic or disease producing organisms, their entrance into the body and their growth.

Dr. Hathaway explained that saprophytes are organisms which live on dead organic matter and that parasites live in or on some other organism. He also discussed the three processes, bacteremia, septicemia and pyemia which rise from invasion of bacteria in blood diseases.

In regard to resistance or immunity, Dr. Hathaway explained that it can be natural or acquired and that there are two types of immunity, active and passive. He also discussed the similarity of allergy and bacteriology. Following his talk, Dr. Hathaway conducted a question and answer period.

"Antique Glass" was the subject of an interesting discussion by Mrs. E. A. Merkel, Mrs. Forkner and Mrs. Grant Ward. Mrs. Merkel spoke of the origin of glass in Egypt and traced its progress in Italy, France, Germany, and on to the New World. Early American glass described by Mrs. Werkel included Wistar, Stiegel, Sandwich and Woodstock. Mrs. Forkner and Mrs. Ward discussed their own collections and displayed some of the antique glassware.

During the business session Mrs. Elmer Post was named delegate to the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs convention in Columbus this week. The club voted to contribute to the new office of the Dental Clinic and to the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Annual picnic of the club will be held at the cabin of Mrs. Harry Bowers on June 23.

John Simpson P. T. A. Names New Officers

MRS. ROMA CAMPBELL was elected president of the John Simpson Junior high school P. T. A. at a meeting of the group held Tuesday evening at the school. Other officers who were named during the session were Mrs. C. E. Flockencier, vice president; Miss Bess Wickert, secretary; T. C. Davis, treasurer; Mrs. Walter Durant, historian, and Mrs. Robert Stevenson, secretary.

Plans were made to hold a benefit card party on May 20 at the school. Mr. Davis, chairman of the ways and means committee, will be in charge. Boys and girls in the physical education classes, under the direction of Robert Gloss, presented a demonstration. First aid demonstrations were given by Dean Smith and Earnest Pennell. Miss Norma Catton directed and explained a first aid demonstration given by the girls.

A musical program will be given at the next session of the association that will be held on May 19 at the school. Miss Fannie Lee Eiler and Lawrence Frank, music instructors, will be in charge of the program.

How to Win Cooperation Of Daughter

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

The following letter indicates that a mother may be able to win cooperation from her teen-age daughter even though she holds to high standards.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—For a long time I have been a reader of your column and enjoy it very much. I have four children, two girls 12 and 16 and boys who are 9 and 14. I am writing in regard to my 16-year-old daughter, Mary, and would like your suggestions or advice.

"In Mary's seventh and eighth grades she had the feeling she had no friends because it seemed that all the girls went out so much more than she that they did not bother with her. They could always do so much more than she was allowed to do.

"I realized she needed attention and understanding and I had little talks with her often alone and when quiet. She had been a poor scholar and at that time had home work which required much time and patience and all during her seventh grade I spent evenings helping her. Now she is a freshman in high school, on the honor roll, every month, popular and active.

Daughter Cooperates.

"Since she is 16 and has very little home work I have let her go with a boy to a movie, game or school dance. The more I increase her privileges the more she seems to want. She goes with a boy now 18 who I know comes from a nice family. He seldom has the car at night but on Tuesday nights he sometimes brings Mary home from Scout meeting and they always come right home. On that night he never stays after nine thirty. She sees him again on week-ends.

"Sunday afternoon Mary asked me if she could go for a ride with him in the car. There were two other couples going. I permitted this but told her to be back in an hour. She did as I asked without any remarks.

"I have tried to be especially nice to all of Mary's friends, but when the car is mentioned I become tense and uncertain. I think at the start I was a bit too strict with her but I do not wish to overdo in the opposite way."

Doctor's Reply.

I wrote this mother that since she had won her daughter's cooperation so well she probably would be safe to increase her daughter's privileges gradually. I also suggested that daughter and mother might work out some rules to cover times when the young girl would be going out. This would eliminate many spur-of-the-moment decisions.

A selected list of books on understanding and guiding the teen-age child may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I did not wonder that Gus looked at me as if he thought I suddenly had gone out of my mind. But he confined his thoughts to his eyes; his speech was gratifyingly docile.

"Okay, Missis Graham," he said. "Look all you want."

"No, no, Gus," I protested, for I knew how lively was the sense of dignity and prestige possessed by police officials. "As soon as the police captain comes in, knock on this door and I will come out and talk to him."

"Okay," he said again.

For a long second I stood in the center of the room, pulling myself together to answer the intuition—what Dicky and Lillian call one of Madge's hunches—which had drawn me inexorably within these four walls.

Sometimes, but not often, from somewhere in the depths of my subconsciousness wells up a mandate to do some certain thing. When I have neglected to obey such a command I always have regretted my omission.

Recalls What Charles Said.

Now I was in the room from which the man Charles had retrieved the parcel which had been the object of a search by the brutal gangsters who had impersonated Charles and Professor Diswell. Charles' gloating "tag line" to the trussed gangsters—"Yes, it was under your nose all the time."—still rang in my ears. I could not but feel that in some way that mysterious parcel was connected with the sheet of cuneiform characters which I had brought for possible translation by Professor Diswell.

I let my eyes roam over the room, searching every nook and corner. It was comfortably furnished, but I was not looking at the furnishings, rather at the walls and floor.

Seeks the Hiding Place.

Somewhere in that room there had been an ingenious hiding place from which Charles had retrieved the parcel, which later he put into his baggage or that of the old professor. Could I find that hiding place?

Almost mechanically I stooped, picked up the rug by an edge, rolled it back and scrutinized the floor beneath. Then I caught my breath. The hardwood floor was laid out in squares, and one of these seemed freer from dust than the others. The room reflected a man's careless housekeeping, although it was not really dirty.

The square had no opening that I could see, but I stooped and pressed my fingers all over its surface, and just as I was about to give up it tipped up. I found myself gazing down into a cedar-lined cavity larger than the lid, big enough to hold several parcels not too large to be put in and taken out of the opening.

I was thankful indeed that I had brought my handbag into the room. With fingers that I vainly tried to keep steady I took from it my tiny pencil flashlight and directed its rays into the cavity, seeing to it that no smallest corner escaped my light.

Finds Old Ivory Cube.

At last I saw it—the object which had been calling me—something which I had not seen for many years, but which brought back to me so vividly a precious past long dead that I felt my throat constricting with sobs to which I dared not give vent.

It was a curiously carved cube of ivory which gleamed whitely in the darkness of the hidden cavity; a small thing originally designed as a watch charm, but which I knew also could be attached to a bracelet But even as, shaken with memories, I clutched at it to rescue it from its eerie grave, I heard a knock on the door of the room, and Gus called me insistently.

"The captain of the troopers is here, Missis Graham," he said.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 23.

The forecast is for a most stirring and eventful day, with all things moving in a surprising and rapid manner, under unusual pressure and toward quite unpredictable goals This probably as a culmination of sound ideas, plans and objectives faithfully and logically pursued but with a sudden and unlooked-for denouement, the combination promising stability and enduring success and good fortune as well as surprising experiences of far-reaching importance. Elders and strangers may figure with real possessions.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of the sudden, strange, surprising and thrilling, in which unlooked for and unpredictable forces may come to the fore. Not only may benefits arise from the staid, expected and worked-for, but there may be unexpected benefits from strange and novel sources. Probably old friends and relatives may figure, or old static assets or business investments may be stabilized.

A child born on this day should possess many splendid traits of sound and stable quality, fortified by unusual ingenuity, vision and creative skills assuring a successful, dramatic and romantic career.

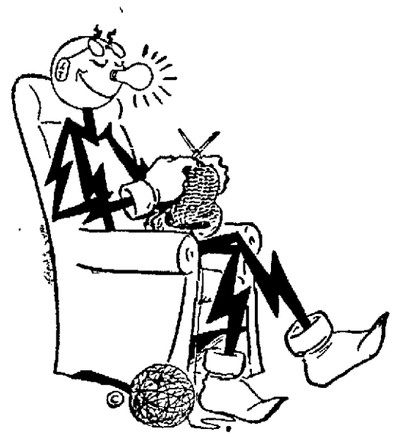
USE PROPER LIGHT

When You "Tend to Your Knitting!"



Patriotic women are busy "tending to their knitting" today as they make socks and sweaters for soldiers and prepare Bundles for Britain. But knitting, sewing, and other exacting eye tasks require plenty of good light if you are to avoid eyestrain and that tired, nervous feeling that so often comes when you work under poor light.

Don't risk your efficiency at your work and ruin your enjoyment of this fine patriotic effort when it's so easy to have proper light at low cost. Come into our store today and see our stock of beautiful floor, table, study and pin-up lamps. You'll be amazed to learn how little it costs to have good light.

If you'd like, our Home Lighting Advisor will be glad to make a free, scientific lighting survey of your home and tell you just what light you need for safe seeing for every eye task.

Punishing for Low Marks In School Futile

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

A few weeks ago a father asked at a meeting I addressed, "Should a child be punished for poor school grades?"

My reply was No. Then I added: You are probably referring to poor or failing grades on the report card. I would even apply my answer to a low or passing grade for a school period or day, as on a test. You want your child to do better work from now on.

Your problem is to find a way to set the stage so he will do better. You falsely assume that he chose to fail That almost never happens. In practically all cases the low grade or failure had already caused the child considerable discomfort, or deep humiliation, even though he pretended not to care. Punishment would hardly make him want to strive the harder.

Instead, the punishment is more likely to add to his feeling of despair, to make him hate the subject in which he lagged, hate school, even hate you.

What Should Parents Do?

If you really want to help him improve at school, you should confer with his teacher. We hope she has insight and wisdom. But she, too, may have been merely hounding and shaming him. If she has, you can hardly hope to change her till you change yourself. You might, however, learn from her just where his trouble is in the subject or subjects in which he lags. You will be fortunate if you can find an expert to help you in case the teacher fails. In case the teacher or anybody else tells you he is lazy, does not work hard enough or won't try, consider this a wholly unsatisfactory answer. Consider what is behind his failure to try hard enough.

Perhaps he has not been disciplined to be home on nights before school nor to start promptly at his lessons at a regular time and place each evening He may not have learned at home to do anything according to a program or standard. You certainly might be justified in punishing him if he doesn't do his home work, and this will be a day by day, week by week, month by month responsibility of yours as well as his.

The chances are his lessons are too hard for him. If he fails after trying he naturally will be discouraged. No doubt he is a very poor reader, stumbling over one or two words in every sentence, or not knowing what he has just read. In this case you can help him by reading from his text book to him, helping him turn each paragraph in a few of his own words

You also might find out just where his trouble is in such skills as the fundamentals in arithmetic and spelling, going back and back till you find where he can succeed and bringing him forward from there. Please don't let yourself rebuke him, shame him or grow angry at him for his failures.

"The Authority on Authorities"

GO AFTER MAXIMUM

Don't be satisfied to embark on a plan of ruffing out certain losers in your hand until you have first surveyed the possibilities of setting up a long suit for discards. That applies most emphatically when you are in a match point duplicate which you are trying to win, and in which you may get bottom score if you merely make your contract or even one or two over-tricks. Somebody else who takes one more trick than you, or perhaps two more, will steal away match points which you yourself might have shared by giving a little more thought to your problem.

At most tables where this deal was played, the heart 4 was led and ruffed by the spade 9. The diamond Q was sent through, the diamond J covered by the K and A, the heart 9 ruffed by the spade Q, the club Q finesse won and the heart Q ruffed by the spade K. The club 5 was sent to the A, the spade A cashed and the 10 lost to the J. The heart A was returned, ruffed by the spade 2 and the spade 8 cashed, dropping the 7. This made the spade 5 good, and the diamond 6 to the 10 took the final trick, making six-odd and producing two extra tricks.

Another declarer, Joseph E. Cain, of Indianapolis, took all of the tricks for a top. After ruffing the heart lead, he went to work on setting up clubs First he won the Q finesse, then the A, led the spade 2 to the Q and the club 6, ruffing with the spade 10, which East could not over-ruff. A spade to the king enabled him to put the diamond Q through, and lead the J to the K and A. The spade A dropped West's last trump, and the diamond 8 to the 10 was an entry for the set-up clubs.

Members of Shelby Women's Club Elect Officers.

SHELBY—Installation of officers for the Shelby Business and Professional Women's club will take place at the next meeting. The date has not been set.

The new officers elected this week when the club held a breakfast meeting at the Shelby Inn were Mrs. Norma Gamble, president; Miss Mary Hockenshilt, first vice president; Miss Mary Lucile Bushey, second vice president; Miss Cora Boyles, recording secretary; Miss Marcella Metzger, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Ellen Crispin, treasurer.

Plans were completed for a meeting to be held at 8 p. m. on May 21 at the Shelby Inn with Judge Constance Keller of Bucyrus as the guest speaker.

NURSES SEEK PAY INCREASE

GALION—Upon recommendation of the medical staff of the Galion city hospital the nurses petitioned members of the city council for a 25 per cent raise in salary when the council held its regular meeting Tuesday night.

Included in the petition were requests for a scaled salary increase for nurses aids, and for hospital cooks. It was also requested that the nurses be allowed two weeks free hospitalization yearly and ten days sick leave to be accumulative. The petition was referred to the finance committee.

Solicitor George Davies was authorized to draw up the deed for the land which was recently presented to the city for the use of the hospital grounds.

CHAPTER XXIX

"It is interesting. I must go by the jewelry shop to see her father. He has maybe late news."

Somehow the harshness of mood that had possessed Parris for weeks melted and fell away. He relaxed and rested his head on his hand. The Professor played for him several little tunes, with such simplicity and such artlessness that Parris had to make some effort to keep back tears.

* * *

Drake and Randy prospered during the next year. Parris watched over Drake with an anxiety that was not apparent to anyone except Randy. One thing she noticed particularly: Parris always led Drake away from reminiscence by appearing uninterested. More and more she saw Drake live in the present, and look with something like eagerness and faith to the future.

One evening as he was leaving he stopped at the door and looked quizzically at Randy.

"Do you suppose you could give me a cup of coffee? It's pretty cold."

In the kitchen Parris laid his hand on her arm. "Don't bother to make it. I just wanted to talk to you for a minute, anyhow."

Her eyes darkened a little. "What's the matter, Parris? Is Drake—"

"He's all right. I just wanted to say that I think we've won in a very ticklish fight. I didn't know a year ago whether we could bring Drake back or not. I think we have."

"Bring him back? I don't understand, quite, Parris. Was he —?"

"Drake was more shattered in —not in his mind exactly—I guess I have to say in his soul than he was in body. Our job has been to bring him back to himself. You've done the biggest share of it yourself."

"I did just what you told me—as nearly as I could."

"You've been pretty wonderful, Randy. He's all right. He's just Drake, now. As normal as anybody can be expected to be. We can go on from here now treating him pretty much like anyone."

Randy began to cry, softly.

"Parris, you—"

"Drake was and is my best friend, Randy. Drake was just as necessary to me when I came back as, maybe, I have been to him."

"You—I can't tell you—I can't say it!"

* * *

Parris shoved a chair toward the kitchen table and sat down. Randy stood for a moment looking at him.

"What's the matter, Randy?"

"You said just now that you considered Drake all right—just as he always was. What about you?"

Parris looked puzzled.

Randy finished the preparations for coffee. "Yes, Parris, you. I've known ever since you got back here to Kings Row that you're not happy. I don't mean to meddle with your business in any way, but—I just wondered if there is anything I can do for you."

"You're a sweet kid to think about me, but it's just a matter of readjustment. I—I didn't like Kings Row when I came back."

"I know that. I could see it."

"Well—Drake kept me here."

"I guessed that, too."

"He was not only my good friend in trouble, but he was a sort of professional job."

"And now you want to go away?"

"You were never more mistaken in your life. I've got my job—it's work and I like and want to do."

"I'm glad, Parris. I'd hate to see you go away."

"I never expect to. It's a little hard to explain, but in some way that lies considerably beyond the ordinary meaning of the word, this is home. I was pretty suddenly and violently uprooted, and when I came back there didn't seem to be anything here that I thought was here. My friendship with Drake was about all that was left of parent soil—do you understand what I mean?"

"I think so."

"Drake, and old Professor Berdorff. Well—it took me a while to put down roots again. The hospital is new ground, of course."

Randy nodded. She was afraid to speak.

"Randy, do you know what mysticism is?"

"No—yes!"

"Well, which? No? Yes?"

"I kind of know, I guess. Belief in something that is behind something else that isn't there."

Parris laughed, and Randy set cups on the table. For the first time Parris saw in her face the impish look she used to have as a little girl.

"Well, that'll do as a starting point! I hate mysticism, as I hate everything that isn't clear. And that's ridiculous, too, because just about all of my work is concerned with chasing spooks that aren't there. I have to try to keep myself and my ideas realistic, but hallucinations—I'm getting off the track. I started out to say something else. I'm not exactly in love with Kings Row, nor with the town, or the way it looks, nor any places in the town, nor the people that live here. But I'm attracted to all of the stages of being I went through right here. Maybe I like the place where the town is—because I honestly think the town itself is pretty awful—and the place happens to be the scene of all my memories I guess I'm not being very explicit."

Randy poured the coffee and sat down on the opposite side of the table.

"I thought and felt certain things here. Now a lot of people carry their spiritual homes around with them—either inside of them, or, well, maybe the way a snail carries his shell on his back: I can't do that. I have to have a place. And, strangely enough this is my place. I know in some sort of way that I've got to be here. I used to love to walk about the country and—just look at it. I have to learn to do that again."

He stirred his coffee vigorously, and drank rather absently.

"Are you homesick for Europe?"

"I guess I was for a while, but—it's curious, Randy. I'm in some ways more European than American, but I don't much like Europeans—not deeply. They're older and more cynical, and that very cynicism—no, it's more like fatalism—acts like a frost. We don't know as much as the Europeans, but—oh, and Kings Row is downright backwoods, really — but we've got something that can grow into something else. The Europeans don't seem to me to have that. They are already what they are—a finished product."

Parris laughed. "I'm talking too much."

"It's your own medicine, Doctor."

"What?"

"You know—talking it out. You've explained it to me—" started, anyway?"

"You needed to talk to someone, that's all."

"Well, I know I'm going home—that's the first time I've said 'home' since I landed here!"

"Maybe you ought to get married, Parris."

He looked at her thoughtfully. "No, Randy, I don't think so. There doesn't seem to be any room anywhere for that kind of—an arrangement."

* * *

There was a special-delivery letter lying under the lamp on his table when he reached his apartment. It was postmarked Kings Row. He opened it and read:

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I haven't had the pleasure of meeting you since your return from abroad, and I regret that my first communication with you is somewhat professional rather than social.

I shall be grateful if you will call us soon as convenient. I should like, also, to have you keep this in strict confidence.

Very truly,
Harriet Gordon.

P. S. It would be more convenient if you could call some evening after supper, instead of during the day. H. G.

Parris frowned. Mrs. Henry Gordon! Strange . . .

He shrugged, tore the letter into small pieces, and dropped the shreds on the dying coals in the fireplace.

He turned and looked around the apartment. The door stood open into his study. Beyond he could see a dim light burning in the bedroom. He had called this "home." Without thinking.

It was a small apartment on the fifth floor of the central administrative building of the hospital, identical with those assigned to all bachelor staff members.

Randy's suggestion that he marry found no response in him, nor did it disturb him in any way. There was no one. . . . But something else did disturb him. Just two words she had spoken in her friendly fashion. "And you?"

He had said Drake was "all right," and then she had asked that disconcerting question. He wondered why she had asked it at all. He was "all right." He was well, and busy, and—yes, he was happy enough. He supposed he had always been serious, more or less. He wasn't a kid any more to go hopping about. Once more there was an almost imperceptible flick of his eyebrows and the beginning of a gesture that might have moved into his characteristic, French-looking shrug of dismissal.

* * *

"And you?"

Oh, drat Randy's teasing question!

Parris threw a towel over an enameled bench and sat down to wait for the bath to fill. Something about the patterns in the water made him think of the little pools and shallows of the creek where he used to play with Renee.

Renee . . . and Cassie . . . moving through the drift of recollections. Events stood out with flaming clarity against the half haze of the surrounding time. Events, distinct and painful.

He had little enough in the recollections of his boyhood life in Kings Row to be happy about. The nature of his bereavements and his griefs had been too dark and too severe for a boy. And now that he was living again in the scene of their happening there must be at times some unconscious association; some spectral presences. . . .

* * *

A week passed before Parris was free to call on Mrs. Gordon. She answered his ring herself and greeted him in a restrained half-voice which gave him an uncomfortable feeling at once.

"It's been a long time since I've seen you," she said. "Of course I've heard—Louise was always speaking of Parris Mitchell."

"No. I fancy not. First tell me about yourself. Could I offer you a cup of hot chocolate? They tell me it's very cold out."

Mrs. Gordon sat, very stiff and straight, in an incongruous Roman chair. Her hair, a surprisingly even dark chestnut was fastened high with a comb. The comb reminded him of his grandmother. He wandered a little . . . .

Mrs. Gordon looked sharply at him. "I said, that I have been going through a very trying experience since my husband passed away."

"Oh. I'm sorry to hear that."

"Dr. Mitchell, I'm sure you were surprised to hear from me. Somehow I felt that I could trust your discretion since you used to be a friend of Louise."

Mrs. Gordon moved forward in her chair. "I have called you to speak about Louise."

"Is Louise ill?"

"I don't know."

Mrs. Gordon twisted the ends of her black-lace scarf. "Dr. Mitchell, I have been afraid Louise's mind has been affected. You may remember that some time ago Louise had a most unfortunate attachment for one of the most undesirable boys in this town."

"You are speaking of Drake McHugh."

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

Word that Japanese Christians are praying for peace has been broadcast to the world by the official Tokyo news agency, Domei, thereby entitling us (indeed probably inviting us)-to draw the conclusion that the government has started a peace movement.

This extraordinary bit of propaganda by Domei follows the warning given by Archibald MacLeish, director of the office of facts and figures, that the Axis would launch a peace offensive this summer.

Any peace campaign by the Axis powers now is filled with peril for the Allies, since it is motivated by a desire to be free to consolidate their ill-gotten conquests and get set for further brigandage. The Hitlerian brotherhood has made its ambitions too clear for there to be any misunderstanding on our part. Japan, in particular, within recent days has been screaming to high heaven that it was going to crush America and Britain.

This is no time for the Allies to join in prayers for peace, that is, a negotiated peace. The war for survival in which we are engaged must be fought to a definite conclusion—until the powers of evil have been uprooted and utterly destroyed. No half-way business this time.

I hope readers won't charge me with having an un-Christian spirit. I believe in prayer, but not to ask that the devil be unleashed to stalk the world. There's nothing in Christianity that tells us to compromise with the devil.

Let's pray for strength to smash the enemy quickly.

Fables From The Fifties: A circus executive stood disconsolate at the bar of a local boite the other evening shaking his head over his problems and wondering how life could become so complicated.

He had just finished a lengthly and heated argument with one of the high-flying trapeze acts in the Greatest Show on Earth—an argument born of a mad, mad misunderstanding.

It seems the circus had signed a European trapeze act at a nominal sum and promised them a bigger salary on the basis of their reception in New York. The opening night show was not over when they went to the executive and insisted that they get their salary jump pronto. Naturally, he asked them what made them think so.

Well, it seems that the troupe got a rousing reception the minute the name was announced.

This struck the executive as rather odd, because he knew the act was unknown in this country. So the next night he watched them work and learned why they got such a rousing reception.

Their entrance music is "Deep In the Heart of Texas!"

But how—and this is the executive's problem—are you going to explain to a group of foreigners about an American audience and Deep In the Heart of Texas?

War Labor Board to Take Over Transportation Controversy.

ARKON —(U.P.)— A wage dispute between the Akron Transportation company and the Transport Workers union (CIO) which threatened to halt bus and street car traffic in Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls today was certified to the war labor board.

A threatened strike of 375 transportation company employes was postponed Saturday pending results of the company-union conference.

EUROPE FACES FAST RISING FOOD SHORTAGE

France Due For Six Breadless Weeks Before Harvest; Labor Lacking.

WASHINGTON—The agriculture department, in a summary of recent cables on European food developments, told today of increasing difficulties confronting Germany and Nazi-occupied countries in producing and supplying their people with food and fiber crops.

Unoccupied France was said to be facing six breadless weeks before the new wheat harvest because of diversion of grain by the black markets, illegal use of wheat for feeding livestock and poultry, counterfeit ration cards, and failure of farmers to deliver the quantities expected

The department said reports coming out of Germany indicated that strongest measures were being taken against violators of food rationing regulations.

Recent restrictions upon the milling of wheat and rye indicate, the department said, that German grain stocks have declined to a level where economies must be effected in order to insure against a poor crop at home this year and the possibility of supplies from southeastern Europe falling below expectations.

Agricultural production in Denmark, which in 1941 was less than half of normal, was said to be seriously threatened by the late spring, shortages of fertilizers, seed and labor.

The department said Germany hoped to secure the production of sufficient food in occupied Ukrainian Russia to meet the needs of Nazi occupation forces and for the bare maintenance of the local population.

"Reports indicate," the department said, "that spring sowing in the Ukraine is no easy task owing to the shortage of machinery and horses taken or destroyed by the Russians."

The department said Germany appears to be getting large supplies of oranges from Spain. The fruit was said to be moving mainly by coastwise steamers from Spanish ports to French ports and then by rail to Germany.

English farmers, the department said, are now plowing about 50 per cent more land this spring than they did before the war, despite acute shortages in labor, machinery and other supplies.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS PREXY

Rid Mind of Things Causing Wars, President of Ohio Northern Says.

"Of what avail is material progress in the world if human behavior does not keep pace with the gains in comforts and conveniences?" asked Dr. Robert Williams, president of Ohio Northern university, in an address on the subject, "What We Are Fighting For," at the Tuesday night intercity meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Rotarians from Shelby, Ashland and Galion joined with the Mansfield club in a meeting in which a diversified entertainment program followed the dinner served at 6:30.

Dr. Williams emphasized the importance of ridding the mind of things that cause wars and said that America is fighting for a kind of civilization in which men can build for peace instead of for war.

"We are fighting for an internal reconstruction of the world in our own minds," he said. "What lies inside men is more important than what lies outside, although much thought has been in terms of material things and surroundings."

William C. Mead, president of the Mansfield club, presided at the meeting and William J. Russell was toastmaster. Group singing included competition between representatives of the four clubs, with Maurice Stretch as pianist.

Tommy Tucker, of Columbus, gave an exhibition of vocal imitations of various sounds and told of the way in which sound effects are produced for motion pictures, based on personal experiences in Hollywood studios.

Harold W. Arlin, Fred Tracy and Dean Dickerson were the Mansfield club's committee on arrangements for this meeting.

AUSTRALIA'S BLUE LAWS CAUSE WEEK-END BOREDOM AMONG A.E.F.

(By United Press)

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —The problem of week-end entertainment for American and Anzac troops brought renewed demands today for a relaxation of Australia's rigid Sunday blue laws.

With men in uniform roaming the streets in acute boredom while on week-end leaves, the land down under now faces the same problem that confronted the United States during the infancy of the United Service organizations.

Long-established Sunday restrictions are dear to conservative and religious Australians who devote their week-ends to church, picnics and polite social calls. Movies, sports events, stage productions are prohibited on Sundays and bars and dance halls must be closed.

But Maj. Lynn Cowan of Van Nuys, Calif., has vowed to provide week-end entertainment for troops on leave, blue laws or no.

"We're not asking you to give up any of your religious tenets, but we're going to have entertainment for our boys," he told more than 100 representatives of the Australian and American military forces, civic groups, churches, theaters and the Australian government.

Cowan's blast led Melbourne to stage a Sunday night entertainment in its town hall for 3,000 service men and their girls.

One Sydney theater had planned to stage a play next Sunday as a blue law "test," but canceled when authorities threatened legal action.

One of the most attractive week-end entertainment spots for service men is the "Power House," a hospitality center established by a group of local philanthropists.

ATTACKS LAW

Union Organizer Sues Over Shelby Hand Bill Curb.

An action to invalidate Shelby's hand bill ordinance was filed today in common pleas court by Homer Pierce, an organizer for the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers union. Pierce was arrested in Shelby last Wednesday for passing bills without a license.

Pierce contends in his petition that the ordinance, passed in May, 1931, is unconstitutional. The action names Mayor William R. Morris, Law Director Frank C. Long, and Police Chief Leroy Coffey defendants. Pierce is represented by Attorney George W. Biddle, Mansfield.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston will hear the plaintiff's request for a temporary injunction againstt the ordinance at 9 a. m. Friday in Mansfield. Pierce's trial in the Shelby mayor's court is the same day.

The order requires hand bill distributors to obtain a license from the mayor. Failure to get a permit is punishable by a maximum fine of $50.

SENATE GROUP TOLD CRISIS DUE SHORTLY

Chairman Says Movement of Food to Market Likely To Be Affected.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With a shipping crisis feared within 60 to 90 days, Sen. Harry S. Truman (D.), Mo., chairman of the senate defense committee, today disclosed that the committee has ordered a sweeping investigation into the entire transportation situation.

There is a possibility that the lack of shipping may become so serious that it will be difficult to transport food products to market, Truman said.

While the inquiry will include building of ships to transport men and materials to far-flung battlefronts, the committee is expected to devote its chief attention to the shipping situation within the nation.

"The transportation and shipping situation is looming just as big as the war production question," explained Truman.

"The fundamental problem is rubber. The railroads will not be able to handle all traffic. We are informed that 85 to 90 per cent of cattle and hogs are now moved to market in trucks.

"The same situation applies as to milk, butter and similar foods, which now are hauled largely in trucks. Some way must be found to relieve the railroads, which are up against the problem of obtaining steel for maintenance and expansion."

Truman proposed that the government immediately plan to expand synthetic rubber production by 300,000 tons in order to care for essential civilian needs.

While the government program now calls for manufacturing capacity for 700,000 tons of synthetic rubber in 1944, Truman urged that it be expanded to 1,000,000 tons.

The committee will call Admiral Emory Land, chairman of the Maritime commission, before it on Thursday to discuss "bottlenecks" in building ocean liners to transport war materials.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, it was learned, informed a senate appropriations subcommittee that he fears great difficulty in moving the enormous production of American farms to market this summer because of lack of transportation.

Would Make Tires From Sugar Cane, Sweet Potatoes

CLEWISTON, Fla—(INS)—Tires made from sugar cane, sweet potatoes and peanuts was the latests suggestion to the government today to relieve the rubber shortage and help win the war.

He said that 100,000 acres of the three products could be cultivated for a total investment of $75,000,000, and at the same time create a new economic status for the vast Florida Everglades.

A synthetic rubber called "lastic" could be derived from carbohydrates provides by the cane, peanuts and potatoes, Bitting said. The finished product would supply approximately 10 per cent of the nation's present rubber needs, he added.

Under the program federal agencies would furnish $50,000,000 of the required investment.

CHAPTER XXIX

"It is interesting. I must go by the jewelry shop to see her father. He has maybe late news."

Somehow the harshness of mood that had possessed Parris for weeks melted and fell away. He relaxed and rested his head on his hand. The Professor played for him several little tunes, with such simplicity and such artlessness that Parris had to make some effort to keep back tears.

* * *

Drake and Randy prospered during the next year. Parris watched over Drake with an anxiety that was not apparent to anyone except Randy. One thing she noticed particularly: Parris always led Drake away from reminiscence by appearing uninterested. More and more she saw Drake live in the present, and look with something like eagerness and faith to the future.

One evening as he was leaving he stopped at the door and looked quizzically at Randy.

"Do you suppose you could give me a cup of coffee? It's pretty cold."

In the kitchen Parris laid his hand on her arm. "Don't bother to make it. I just wanted to talk to you for a minute, anyhow."

Her eyes darkened a little "What's the matter, Parris? Is Drake—"

"He's all right. I just wanted to say that I think we've won in a very ticklish fight. I didn't know a year ago whether we could bring Drake back or not. I think we have."

"Bring him back? I don't understand, quite. Parris. Was he —?"

"Drake was more shattered in —not in his mind exactly—I guess I have to say in his soul than he was in body. Our job has been to bring him back to himself You've done the biggest share of it yourself."

"I did just what you told me—as nearly as I could."

"You've been pretty wonderful, Randy. He's all right. He's just Drake, now. As normal as anybody can be expected to be. We can go on from here now treating him pretty much like anyone."

Randy began to cry, softly.

"Parris, you—"

"Drake was and is my best friend, Randy. Drake was just as necessary to me when I came back as, maybe, I have been to him."

"You—I can't tell you—I can't say it!"

* * *

Parris shoved a chair toward the kitchen table and sat down. Randy stood for a moment looking at him

"What's the matter, Randy?"

"You said just now that you considered Drake all right—just as he always was. What about you?"

Parris looked puzzled.

Randy finished the preparations for coffee. "Yes, Parris, you. I've known ever since you got back here to Kings Row that you're not happy. I don't mean to meddle with your business in any way, but—I just wondered it there is anything I can do for you."

"You're a sweet kid to think about me, but it's just a matter of readjustment. I—I didn't like Kings Row when I came back"

"I know that. I could see it"

"Well—Drake kept me here."

"I guessed that, too."

"He was not only my good friend in trouble, but he was a sort of professional job"

"And now you want to go away?"

"You were never more mistaken in your life. I've got my job—it's work and I like and want to do."

"I'm glad, Parris. I'd hate to see you go away."

"I never expect to. It's a little hard to explain, but in some way that lies considerably beyond the ordinary meaning of the word, this is home. I was pretty suddenly and violently uprooted, and when I came back there didn't seem to be anything here that I thought was here. My friendship with Drake was about all that was left of parent soil—do you understand what I mean?"

"I think so."

"Drake, and old Professor Berdorff. Well—it took me a while to put down roots again. The hospital is new ground, of course."

Randy nodded. She was afraid to speak.

"Randy, do you know what mysticism is?"

"No—yes!"

"Well, which? No? Yes?"

"I kind of know I guess. Belief in something that is behind something else that isn't there."

Parris laughed, and Randy set cups on the table. For the first time Parris saw in her face the impish look she used to have as a little girl.

"Well, that'll do as a starting point! I hate mysticism, as I hate everything that isn't clear. And that's ridiculous, too, because just about all of my work is concerned with chasing spooks that aren't there. I have to try to keep myself and my ideas realistic, but hallucinations—I'm getting off the track. I started out to say something else. I'm not exactly in love with Kings Row, nor with the town, or the way it looks, nor any places in the town, nor the people that live here But I'm attracted to all of the stages of being I went through right here. Maybe I like the place where the town is—because I honestly think the town itself is pretty awful—and the place happens to be the scene of all my memories. I guess I'm not being very explicit"

"I understand something of what you mean. Go on"

Randy poured the coffee and sat down on the opposite side of the table.

"I thought and felt certain things here. Now a lot of people carry their spiritual homes around with them—either inside of them, or, well, maybe the way a snail carries his shell on his back. I can't do that I have to have a place. And, strangely enough, this is my place I know in some sort of way that I've got to be here I used to love to walk about the country and—just look at it I have to learn to do that again"

He stirred his coffee vigorously, and drank rather absently

"Are you homesick for Europe?"

"I guess I was for a while, but—it's curious, Randy. I'm in some ways more European than American, but I don't much like Europeans—not deeply. They're older and more cynical, and that very cynicism—no, it's more like fatalism—acts like a frost We don't know as much as the Europeans, but—oh, and Kings Row is downright backwoods, really — but we've got something that can grow into something else. The Europeans don't seem to me to have that. They are already what they are—a finished product."

Parris laughed. "I'm talking too much."

"It's your own medicine, Doctor."

"What?"

"You know — talking it out. You've explained it to me—" started, anyway?"

"You needed to talk to someone, that's all."

"Well, I know I'm going home —that's the first time I've said 'home' since I landed here!"

"Maybe you ought to get married, Parris."

He looked at her thoughtfully. "No, Randy, I don't think so. There doesn't seem to be any room anywhere for that kind of—an arrangement."

* * *

There was a special-delivery letter lying under the lamp on his table when he reached his apartment. It was postmarked Kings Row. He opened it and read:

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I haven't had the pleasure of meeting you since your return from abroad, and I regret that my first communication with you is somewhat professional rather than social.

I shall be grateful if you will call as soon as convenient. I should like, also, to have you keep this in strict confidence.

Very truly,
Harriet Gordon

P. S It would be more convenient if you could call some evening after supper, instead of during the day. H. G.

Parris frowned. Mrs. Henry Gordon! Strange . . .

He shrugged, tore the letter into small pieces, and dropped the shreds on the dying coals in the fireplace.

He turned and looked around the apartment. The door stood open into his study. Beyond he could see a dim light burning in the bedroom. He had called this "home" without thinking.

It was a small apartment on the fifth floor of the central administrative building of the hospital, identical with those assigned to all bachelor staff members

Randy's suggestion that he marry found no response in him, nor did it disturb him in any way There was no one. . . . But something else did disturb him Just two words she had spoken in her friendly fashion. "And you?"

He had said Drake was "all right," and then she had asked that disconcerting question. He wondered why she had asked it at all. He was "all right." He was well, and busy, and—yes, he was happy enough. He supposed he had always been serious, more or less He wasn't a kid any more to go hopping about Once more there was an almost imperceptible flick of his eyebrows and the beginning of a gesture that might have moved into his characteristic. French-looking shrug of dismissal.

* * *

"And you?"

Oh, drat Randy's teasing question!

Parris threw a towel over an enameled bench and sat down to wait for the bath to fill. Something about the patterns in the water made him think of the little pools and shallows of the creek where he used to play with Renee.

Renee . . . and Cassie . . . moving through the drift of recollections. Events stood out with flaming clarity against the half haze of the surrounding time. Events, distinct and painful.

He had little enough in the recollections of his boyhood life in Kings Row to be happy about. The nature of his bereavements and his griefs had been too dark and too severe for a boy. And now that he was living again in the scene of their happening there must be at times some unconscious association; some spectral presences. . . .

* * *

A week passed before Parris was free to call on Mrs. Gordon She answered his ring herself and greeted him in a restrained half-voice which gave him an uncomfortable feeling at once

"It's been a long time since I've seen you," she said. "Of course I've heard—Louise was always speaking of Parris Mitchell."

"How is Louise? I haven't seen her since I came back"

"No. I fancy not. First tell me about yourself. Could I offer you a cup of hot chocolate? They tell me it's very cold out."

Mrs. Gordon sat, very stiff and straight, in an incongruous Roman chair. Her hair, a surprisingly even dark chestnut was fastened high with a comb. The comb reminded him of his grandmother. He wandered a little . . . .

Mrs. Gordon looked sharply at him. "I said, that I have been going through a very trying experience since my husband passed away."

"Oh, I'm sorry to hear that."

"Dr. Mitchell, I'm sure you were surprised to hear from me. Somehow I felt that I could trust your discretion since you used to be a friend of Louise."

Mrs. Gordon moved forward in her chair. "I have called you to speak about Louise."

"Is Louise ill?"

"I don't know."

Mrs. Gordon twisted the ends of her black-lace scarf. "Dr. Mitchell, I have been afraid Louise's mind has been affected. You may remember that some time ago Louise had a most unfortunate attachment for one of the most undesirable boys in this town."

"You are speaking of Drake McHugh."

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

Word that Japanese Christians are praying for peace has been broadcast to the world by the official Tokyo news agency, Domei, thereby entitling us (indeed probably inviting us)-to draw the conclusion that the government has started a peace movement.

This extraordinary bit of propaganda by Domei follows the warning given by Archibald MacLeish, director of the office of facts and figures, that the Axis would launch a peace offensive this summer.

Any peace campaign by the Axis powers now is filled with peril for the Allies, since it is motivated by a desire to be free to consolidate their ill-gotten conquests and get set for further brigandage. The Hitlerian brotherhood has made its ambitions too clear for there to be any misunderstanding on our part. Japan, in particular, within recent days has been screaming to high heaven that it was going to crush America and Britain.

This is no time for the Allies to join in prayers for peace, that is, a negotiated peace. The war for survival in which we are engaged must be fought to a definite conclusion—until the powers of evil have been uprooted and utterly destroyed. No half-way business this time.

I hope readers won't charge me with having an un-Christian spirit. I believe in prayer, but not to ask that the devil be unleashed to stalk the world. There's nothing in Christianity that tells us to compromise with the devil.

Let's pray for strength to smash the enemy quickly.

BROADWAY

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

MANHATTAN Glitter: Myrna Loy listening to "These Foolish things" at Cy Walter's Nightcap. . . . George S. Kaufman ginrummying at the 1-2-3. . . . Paulette Goddard balancing the longest cigaret holder in the world. . . . Joyce Matthews (Mrs. Milton Berle) in town to see HER mother! . . . Margaret Sullavan, the girl with the voice, nibbling a Welsh rarebit in Twenty-One. . . . Gloria Swanson, swathed in shocking pink, gliding into the Colony with—yes, Lieut.-Commander Gene Markey. . . . Jimmy Walker loneing it at the Stork Club. . . . Leonora Corbett, the town's loveliest ghost, neatly side-stepping a pair of blithe spirits outside the Pierre—bibulous gents who insisted they'd met her in Milwaukee!

The Midnight Scene: Maxine Sullivan's "farewell" appearance at the Ruban Bleu, before her marriage and retirement, was touching. The small, dusky singer caroled for an hour and a half with tears in her eyes. . . . Carole Landis had quite a little difficulty keeping her beaux straight, or so it seemed. . . . Broadway is beginning to look like New Year's Eve every night. Never saw such crowds. . . . Leota Lane, who made her New York cafe debut with sister Lola at the Little Club, returns to the scene when she sings at the State Door Canteen this week. The Canteen, you probably recall, is on the site of the once so-popular Little Club. . . . Vinton Freedley must be very busy casting comedians for next Autumn. He is said to have his eye on Gene Sheldon, of "priorities' 'and Leonard Elliott of the Cotillion Room. . . . Joe Frisco packed himself bag and baggage and moved next door into the 18 Club.

Fables From The Fifties: A circus executive stood disconsolate at the bar of a local boite the other evening shaking his head over his problems and wondering how life could become so complicated.

He had just finished a lengthly and heated argument with one of the high-flying trapeze acts in the Greatest Show on Earth—an argument born of a mad, mad misunderstanding.

It seems the circus had signed a European trapeze act at a nominal sum and promised them a bigger salary on the basis of their reception in New York. The opening night show was not over when they went to the executive and insisted that they get their salary jump pronto. Naturally, he asked them what made them think so.

Well, it seems that the troupe got a rousing reception the minute the name was announced.

This struck the executive as rather odd, because he knew the act was unknown in this country. So the next night he watched them work and learned why they got such a rousing reception.

Their entrance music is "Deep In the Heart of Texas!"

But how—and this is the executive's problem—are you going to explain to a group of foreigners about an American audience and Deep In the Heart of Texas?

The Owl Patrol: Tallulah Bankhead and Clifton Webb jiving with Bennet Cerf at the Penguin. . . . Rosita Rios wearing a growing forget-me-not in a real flower pot on her lapel—honest to goodness! . . . Raymond Massey and Katharine Cornell huddling over scripts of "Candida." They're playing it for four performances, and rehearsing it as if it were going to run a year! . . . Adele Jergens, recently of "Banjo Eyes," is priming for a screen test. . . . The Savoy-Plaza Cafe Lounge is looking for a substitute for Hildegarde for three nights—April 21 to April 23—while Hildy is out of town with the tryout of "Keep 'Em Laughing." . . . Hugh Herbert and his jovial Mrs. giggling in the Ritz bar. . . . Al Schacht, the baseball clown, breezing into town with the hot-dog and pop bottle season.

Probate court workers receiving a letter from Mrs. William Depler, former deputy in the court, who is in Los Angeles, Calif. . . . One of the inductees who left Mansfield this morning calling to an older friend on the street: "Don't you wish you were 10 years older so you could go with me?"

GETS DISPUTE

War Labor Board to Take Over Transportation Controversy.

ARKON —(U.P.)— A wage dispute between the Akron Transportation company and the Transport Workers union (CIO) which threatened to halt bus and street car traffic in Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls today was certified to the war labor board.

A threatened strike of 375 transportation company employes was postponed Saturday pending results of the company-union conference.

EUROPE FACES FAST RISING FOOD SHORTAGE

France Due For Six Breadless Weeks Before Harvest; Labor Lacking.

WASHINGTON—The agriculture department, in a summary of recent cables on European food developments, told today of increasing difficulties confronting Germany and Nazi-occupied countries in producing and supplying their people with food and fiber crops.

Unoccupied France was said to be facing six breadless weeks before the new wheat harvest because of diversion of grain by the black markets, illegal use of wheat for feeding livestock and poultry, counterfeit ration cards, and failure of farmers to deliver the quantities expected

The department said reports coming out of Germany indicated that strongest measures were being taken against violators of food rationing regulations.

Recent restrictions upon the milling of wheat and rye indicate, the department said, that German grain stocks have declined to a level where economies must be effected in order to insure against a poor crop at home this year and the possibility of supplies from southeastern Europe falling below expectations.

Agricultural production in Denmark, which in 1941 was less than half of normal, was said to be seriously threatened by the late spring, shortages of fertilizers, seed and labor.

The department said Germany hoped to secure the production of sufficient food in occupied Ukrainian Russia to meet the needs of Nazi occupation forces and for the bare maintenance of the local population.

"Reports indicate," the department said, "that spring sowing in the Ukraine is no easy task owing to the shortage of machinery and horses taken or destroyed by the Russians."

The department said Germany appears to be getting large supplies of oranges from Spain. The fruit was said to be moving mainly by coastwise steamers from Spanish ports to French ports and then by rail to Germany.

English farmers, the department said, are now plowing about 50 per cent more land this spring than they did before the war, despite acute shortages in labor, machinery and other supplies.

BACK ON JOB

Babe Ruth, Recovered, Goes on With Work In Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Babe Ruth was back at work on a movie lot today, playing a scene in a Chicago rathskeller instead of hitting home runs.

Fully recovered from an attack of pneumonia, the home run king sat and watched a huge lamb roast turning on a spit, while cameras recorded the scene in a German beer cellar where Lou Gehrig met his wife for the first time.

MANSFIELDER'S FATHER DIES

Funeral for W. J. Feiser, 79, to Be Held Thursday.

Funeral services for William J. Feiser, 79, retired trainmaster on the Nickel Plate railroad and father of David N. Feiser, Mansfield, will be held at 3:30 p. m., Thursday in Lima with Rev. C. N. Bakker, pastor of the West Market Street Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery, Lima.

Mr. Feiser died Tuesday at his home in Lima of acute angina. He had been ill two months.

Native of Woodsboro, Md., he had lived in Lima for 42 years. He was employed by the Nickel Plate railroad for 37 years, retiring five years ago. He was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Surviving, besides his son, David, who is office manager of the R. E. Moorhead company in Mansfield, are the widow, Mrs. Dezora Feiser; a daughter, Mrs. J. R. Dewenter of Charlotte, N. C.; two granddaughters, and a grandson.

TALK GAS RATE

SHELBY — City officials will meet with officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas company from Columbus Thursday night at the city hall to discuss the gas rates for the city. The meeting will also be attended by city councilmen.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS PREXY

Rid Mind of Things Causing Wars, President of Ohio Northern Says.

"Of what avail is material progress in the world if human behavior does not keep pace with the gains in comforts and conveniences?" asked Dr. Robert Williams, president of Ohio Northern university, in an address on the subject, "What We Are Fighting For," at the Tuesday night intercity meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Rotarians from Shelby, Ashland and Galion joined with the Mansfield club in a meeting in which a diversified entertainment program followed the dinner served at 6.30.

Dr. Williams emphasized the importance of ridding the mind of things that cause wars and said that America is fighting for a kind of civilization in which men can build for peace instead of for war.

"We are fighting for an internal reconstruction of the world in our own minds," he said. "What lies inside men is more important than what lies outside, although much thought has been in terms of material things and surroundings."

William C. Mead, president of the Mansfield club, presided at the meeting and William J. Russell was toastmaster. Group singing included competition between representatives of the four clubs, with Maurice Stretch as pianist.

Tommy Tucker, of Columbus, gave an exhibition of vocal imitations of various sounds and told of the way in which sound effects are produced for motion pictures, based on personal experiences in Hollywood studios.

Harold W. Arlin, Fred Tracy and Dean Dickerson were the Mansfield club's committee on arrangements for this meeting.

HEART ATTACK ENDS IN DEATH

Dr. C. H. York, Veterinarian, Dies At Holmesville.

He was a farmer and a veterinarian. Born in Nebraska, he came to Holmes county 20 years ago.

He was graduated from the Kansas College of Veterinary but worked for the government for many years in Dodge, Iowa. A member of the Masonic lodge he was also a worthy patron of the O. E. S. of Holmesville.

The body will remain at the Elliott funeral home until Thursday evening when it will be removed to the residence. Services will be conducted Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the Holmesville Church of Christ with Rev. J. W. Waddell officiating. Burial will be in the Holmesville cemetery.

SPEAKS IN SHELBY

SHELBY—Mrs. J. C. Gilmore of Springfield, district president of the Ohio Child Conservation league, will be guest speaker at a dinner meeting for Shelby Junior Mothers club at the Shelby Inn tonight.

AUSTRALIA'S BLUE LAWS CAUSE WEEK-END BOREDOM AMONG A.E.F.

(By United Press)

GEN MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —The problem of week-end entertainment for American and Anzac troops brought renewed demands today for a relaxation of Australia's rigid Sunday blue laws.

With men in uniform roaming the streets in acute boredom while on week-end leaves, the land down under now faces the same problem that confronted the United States during the infancy of the United Service organizations.

Long-established Sunday restrictions are dear to conservative and religious Australians who devote their week-ends to church, picnics and polite social calls. Movies, sports events, stage productions are prohibited on Sundays and bars and dance halls must be closed.

But Maj. Lynn Cowan of Van Nuys, Calif., has vowed to provide week-end entertainment for troops on leave, blue laws or no.

"We're not asking you to give up any of your religious tenets, but we're going to have entertainment for our boys," he told more than 100 representatives of the Australian and American military forces, civic groups, churches, theaters and the Australian government.

Cowan's blast led Melbourne to stage a Sunday night entertainment in its town hall for 3,000 service men and their girls.

One Sydney theater had planned to stage a play next Sunday as a blue law "test," but canceled when authorities threatened legal action.

One of the most attractive week-end entertainment spots for service men is the "Power House," a hospitality center established by a group of local philanthropists.

ATTACKS LAW

Union Organizer Sues Over Shelby Hand Bill Curb.

An action to invalidate Shelby's hand bill ordinance was filed today in common pleas court by Homer Pierce, an organizer for the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers union. Pierce was arrested in Shelby last Wednesday for passing bills without a license.

Pierce contends in his petition that the ordinance, passed in May, 1931, is unconstitutional. The action names Mayor William R. Morris, Law Director Frank C. Long, and Police Chief Leroy Coffey defendants. Pierce is represented by Attorney George W. Biddle, Mansfield.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston will hear the plaintiff's request for a temporary injunction againstt the ordinance at 9 a. m. Friday in Mansfield. Pierce's trial in the Shelby mayor's court is the same day.

The order requires hand bill distributors to obtain a license from the mayor. Failure to get a permit is punishable by a maximum fine of $50.

The Richland county election board had received its first petition of the primary campaign today and it was filed by a candidate from outside the county. First to declare himself officially a candidate was J. Harry Payne of Newark, expected to be the only one to file for Republican state central committeeman from the 17th district which includes Richland county. County chairman throughout the district endorsed Payne for the post at a recent meeting in Mt. Vernon. The committeemen are elected at the August primaries.

SENATE GROUP TOLD CRISIS DUE SHORTLY

Chairman Says Movement of Food to Market Likely To Be Affected.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With a shipping crisis feared within 60 to 90 days, Sen. Harry S. Truman (D.), Mo., chairman of the senate defense committee, today disclosed that the committee has ordered a sweeping investigation into the entire transportation situation.

There is a possibility that the lack of shipping may become so serious that it will be difficult to transport food products to market, Truman said.

While the inquiry will include building of ships to transport men and materials to far-flung battlefronts, the committee is expected to devote its chief attention to the shipping situation within the nation.

"The transportation and shipping situation is looming just as big as the war production question," explained Truman

"The fundamental problem is rubber. The railroads will not be able to handle all traffic. We are informed that 85 to 90 per cent of cattle and hogs are now moved to market in trucks.

"The same situation applies as to milk, butter and similar foods, which now are hauled largely in trucks. Some way must be found to relieve the railroads, which are up against the problem of obtaining steel for maintenance and expansion."

Truman proposed that the government immediately plan to expand synthetic rubber production by 300,000 tons in order to care for essential civilian needs.

While the government program now calls for manufacturing capacity for 700,000 tons of synthetic rubber in 1944, Truman urged that it be expanded to 1,000,000 tons.

The committee will call Admiral Emory Land, chairman of the Maritime commission, before it on Thursday to discuss "bottlenecks" in building ocean liners to transport war materials.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, it was learned, informed a senate appropriations subcommittee that he fears great difficulty in moving the enormous production of American farms to market this summer because of lack of transportation.

Would Make Tires From Sugar Cane, Sweet Potatoes

CLEWISTON, Fla—(INS)—Tires made from sugar cane, sweet potatoes and peanuts was the latests suggestion to the government today to relieve the rubber shortage and help win the war.

He said that 100,000 acres of the three products could be cultivated for a total investment of $75,000,000, and at the same time create a new economic status for the vast Florida Everglades.

A synthetic rubber called "lastic" could be derived from carbohydrates provides by the cane, peanuts and potatoes, Bitting said. The finished product would supply approximately 10 per cent of the nation's present rubber needs, he added.

Under the program federal agencies would furnish $50,000,000 of the required investment.

by REX HESS

One of the girls who bowled in the Tiffin tournament Sunday thought I was razzing her when I mentioned in yesterday's column that there was no good reason why the scores rolled by Mansfield women should be kept secret. So good they were.

Now I wouldn't attempt at any time to razz any one of the girls or all of them. You see, I've only been married now for 15 years. So I know better than that.

It's true she called me Monday with some information on what the girls did in Tiffin, but all too late for that information to get in Monday's paper.

* * *

But here's a point I would like to get over to all bowling teams, men, women and children.

When sponsors of bowling teams go to some expense to send those teams away to tournaments, the best those teams can do is see to it that their scores are turned in to the home town paper the next day so the people at home can learn what the score is.

* * *

And this failure to turn in scores is not restricted to the women's teams by any means. The men are just as remiss, if not more so, in their failure to turn in scores when they bowl out of town.

* * *

The bowling season is almost over, and this column should be written next fall when it probably would do more good. But I need a column today.

It isn't necessary for me to point out instances now when teams bowling out of town failed to turn in their scores here when they returned. This has happened so often the teams themselves must be aware of their delinquency by now.

* * *

But do you know that out of eight Mansfield teams rolling in the ABC at Columbus last week, only two reported their scores to this office? Happily, the United Press furnished the important scores, so Mansfield's participation in the biggest bowling event of the year was adequately covered.

* * *

The sponsors aren't kicking, but they should. So this is just a tip, my friends, if you want to keep a sponsor happy, at least give him the only break he's got coming with a little publicity on what goes on for the dough he puts up. It shouldn't be necessary for me to say that this dart is not directed at any one particular person. So no one should feel hurt.

Auker Considers Quitting Baseball

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Elden Auker, veteran St. Louis pitcher and "submarine" artist, was considering today whether to continue in baseball or to accept a permanent job from a Detroit industrial plant, working on war orders.

* * *

"I haven't quite made up my mind," Auker said, "but it looks as if I may quit baseball."

* * *

Aukers announcement confirmed the opinion of baseball magnates that many players in lower paying brackets may give up the game for higher paying war jobs.

Auker is a graduate of Kansas State college and holds a bachelor of science degree. He worked at the Midwest Abrasive company, during the winter.

Tuesday League Ends Season

Women of the Tuesday Matinee bowling league closed their season last night with a very fine banquet at Fred Miller's Orange street cafe.

After distributing the numerous prizes they had coming, they elected officers for next year, and left all questions of the operation of next winter's league to the fall meeting.

Redlegs Stagger Gaudily

Pitching Falters and Nothing Else Works.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Cincinnati Reds are staggering groggily at the doorway to the National league cellar and finally learning what their best friends wouldn't tell them during spring training.

The Reds' pitching, one of baseball's marvels for the last three years, suddenly has faltered.

Yesterday the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the Redlegs, 8-0. The fact that Cincinnati did not score would never cause a ripple of concern anywhere, because the club never has been able to hit, but that Bucky Walters gave up 11 hits in 6⅓ innings was a matter of moment.

In their six games so far the Reds have had to use 11 hurlers. Elmer Riddle, the league's leading twirler last year, was belted off the mound in the first inning he pitched this season. Gene Thompson lasted only three frames in his first start. John Vander Meer pitched a five-hitter but spoiled it with the "one bad inning" he seems to have in game after game.

Walters was beaten in the opening game of the season, too. He pitched seven-hit ball, yielded four runs in the first four innings. Altogether the Reds have given 53 hits in 60 innings.

Other clubs might win with this sort of pitching, but the Reds cannot. Cincinnati has scored only 16 runs on 46 hits and the once-faultless defense now resembles a sieve. The Reds made eight errors in one game recently.

To show what the Reds are up against, St. Louis pitchers have allowed 48 hits in seven games and the Cardinals themselves have made 62 hits for 32 runs. And against the weaker opposition of the eastern division, Brooklyn pitchers have permitted 56 hits in eight games while their teammates have amassed 51 runs on 81 safeties.

Prior to yesterday, the Cardinals had come up with two four-hit games. Mort Cooper looked masterful in holding the Reds to three singles in his latest outing and the offensive his teammates waged on Walters was nothing short of vicious.

The Dodgers administered an even more heartless threshing to the Boston Braves in a 13-2 decision. Rookie Ed Head pitched eight-hit ball for his second success.

In the only other National league game Truett (Rip) Sewell held the Chicago Cubs to six hits while the Pittsburgh Pirates patterned a 5-2 triumph around home runs by Bob Elliott and Stu Martin.

The New York Yankees crushed the Philadelphia Athletics, 10-4, by way of celebrating Manager Joe McCarthy's 55th birthday. Charley Keller hit a grand slam homer in the first inning as Charley (Red) Ruffing breezed to his second victory.

The Detroit Tigers whipped the Chicago White Sox, 4-2, with Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and Johnny Gorsica sharing a six-hit pitching stint. Rowe kept the Sox shut out till the ninth.

Cleveland bunched its hits to beat the St. Louis Browns, 4-2, in the other American league game as Lefty Al Milnar kept seven safeties adequately spaced.

Kennedy Gets Starting Spot

Tribe Rests In Third Place, Defeats Browns.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— With the Satisfaction of being in third place, the Cleveland Indians sent Vernon Kennedy against the St. Louis Browns today for the third game of the series and the last one to be played here until May 10.

Hoping to win at least one match here, the Browns called on young Bob Muncrief, winner of 13 games last year, to avenge the tribe's 4 to 2 triumph yesterday. The victory put Cleveland in third place.

Al Milnar limited the Browns to seven scattered hits yesterday in notching his first victory of the season. He permitted a tally in the fifth on doubles by Ricl. Ferrel and Don Gutteridge, and another in the ninth on a walk, a single and a sacrifice.

In their half of the fifth, the Redskins jumped on Bob Harris for four hits and three runs, enough to win the game, but they added another marker in the seventh.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Asa Bushnell says it's 50-50 whether the Poughkeepsie regatta will be held at some other place. . . . As we see it, that means 50-1 it will go to Syracuse and 50-1 that most people won't care. . . . Les MacMitchell, who is scheduled to run four races at the Penn relays, may wind up his college career with another duel with Gil Dodds during commencement week at Georgetown U. . . . MacMitchell is due to go into the navy right after his graduation from N. Y. U. . . . Mushky McGee, Mike Jacobs' handyman, goes into the army Friday. . . . Although it's generally agreed that Lieut. Mickey Cochrane will pilot the all-star service team against the major leaguers this summer, folks around Jacksonville, Fla., argue that Lieut. George Earnshaw of the naval air station there should be at least chief coach.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Julie Kogon has had to call off his fight with Joe Pirrone at Chicago Friday because his boss in a New Haven (Conn.) defense plant says he can't be spared. . . . In his last three New York fights (and we mean last) Lew Jenkins lost to Red Cochrane, Bob Montgomery and Sammy Angott. On each card his stablemate, Allie Stolz, won the semi-windup. Next time out Stolz will be fighting Angott for the lightweight title.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

W. N. Cox, Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: "The same day that Rapid Robert Feller showed the Newark Bears so much stuff he was up with the navy training squad at 4:30 o'clock. . . . Of course, a lot of pitchers are up and around at 4:30 in the morning, that is they haven't gone to bed yet, but they either can't or don't pitch like Bobby, either."

Tourney Ends Alley Season

Colony Sets Dates For Singles, Doubles.

Mansfield's bowling season will be closed with Colony alleys' first doubles and singles classic, planned as an annual event, Al Vogel, Colony manager, has announced.

* * *

The tournament, scheduled from May 9 to 24 over three week-ends of play, will have a guaranteed prize list of $225, including $150 in doubles and $75 in singles.

* * *

Vogel this week is mailing out posters on the event to bowling alleys throughout northern and central Ohio, and hopes to draw a large entry list. Entries close May 2.

Entry fees will be $3.50 per man per event, and include bowling. Entries should be mailed to Secretary Art Hilborn, at the Colony alleys.

Need Extra 30 Minutes to Hunt

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A proposal to allow pheasant and rabbit hunters an extra half hour of shooting was suggested for adoption by Ohio's conservation and natural resources, commission at yesterday's public hearing on changes in game laws, attended by representatives of the state's seven conservation districts.

The commission which will act on the recommendations at a conference today, appeared likely to change official hunting hours from 7:30 to 8:30 in the morning with the closing at six instead of five, in order to conform with eastern war time.

Two district delegates suggested open seasons on deer in the Roosevelt game preserve and Shawnee forest in southern Ohio, and three others asked for groundhog protection.

Boys Blink At Late Pins

And Nothing Else Happens in ABC.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The vaulted Coliseum on Ohio's State fairgrounds merrily echoed the boom of bowling balls in today's wee hours.

As five spectators looked sleepily on, two Ohio quintets took their belated turns on a pair of American Bowling congress drives—with 34 other lanes vacant.

* * *

They drew the post-midnight vigil because a pin-setting device was broken as a pin-boy dropped it during the first game of their scheduled tour last night. So the teams—the St. Clair-98th Recreations of Cleveland and the Spears Funeral home of Columbus—were pulled off to roll after the night's second shift.

* * *

Unmolested save possibly by silence, the Clevelanders finished with a 2766 while the funeral five compiled 2721.

Two scoreboard men blinked owlishly. A brace of pinboys yawned. But the foul judge was on the qui vive. He called three fouls.

Others on hand besides the little knot of spectators were four alley maintenance men, one taxicab starter and two charwomen.

P. S.—The ABC tournament leaders were unchanged by last night's bowlers, paced in the five-man event by the Dr. Pepper team of Hamilton, O., with a 2919 on games of 973, 931 and 1015.

Who's Crying Now? Why It's Our Mr. Townsend

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association, today blamed early elimination of "local interest" teams and tire rationing for the sharp drop in attendance at the state Class A high school basketball tournament at Kent.

* * *

A report released by the association showed that only 6,599 fans paid admission to witness the final eliminations.

* * *

"Akron North and Canton Lehman high schools, both carrying much local interest in the vicinity of Kent, were eliminated," Townsend pointed out, "while Xenia Central, which won the title, and Toledo Central Catholic came through with flying colors although they were from remote districts."

The statement showed that 18,082 fewer persons attended both the Class A finals, at Kent, and the Class B finals, at Springfield, than the combined playoffs held at the Ohio state fairgrounds, at Columbus, last year.

The figures revealed that $8,948.02 less was taken in this year at the two meets, and the share taken by the association was $1,538.76 less.

Total receipts for county, sectional district and the state finals showed a slight increase, Townsend said, but a 10 per cent federal tax and the 3 per cent state sales tax cut the net profits below last year.

* * *

The regional finals, played by Class A schools only for the first time this year, failed to add enough revenue or box office sales to match last year's peak record.

* * *

Total receipts were $9,050.47 ahead of last year but the state's "take" was $2,206.59 less. Attendance at all meets showed that 11,799 fewer persons attended.

Blues Rival Brewer Streak

Take Fifth Win in Row In American Association.

(By Associated Press)

The Kansas City Blues, who have been building up an American Association winning streak with a minimum of runs, reversed the procedure yesterday for their fifth straight—a mark, incidentally, that is excelled only by the still undefeated Milwaukee Brewers.

Yesterday the Blues wound up with a 10 to 1 victory over St. Paul, a far departure from their first six games—four of which were decided by one run and five of which produced an average of less than three runs a game for the blues.

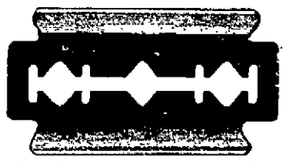
Today is an open date around the circuit, but for St. Paul it is more like a reprieve. The Saints have lost all six of their games.

Milwaukee ran its undefeated string to six yesterday with a 10 to 9 triumph over Minneapolis. The surprising Brewers had to go an extra inning to win.

Nelson Potter's six hit, 4-0 shutout victory over Columbus enabled Louisville to keep step with Kansas City, both of which now have won five games and lost two.

Seven Indianapolis errors, three of them in the tenth, helped Toledo to defeat the Indians, 9 to 4.

A Wartime Message
. . . to every American Who Shaves



This is a safety razor blade. It's made of steel. So are bullets and planes and tanks and ships. It doesn't take any more steel to make a good blade than a poor one. The good blade is keener, lasts longer, gives more good shaves per edge.

Moral: Buy better blades, even if they cost a little more. You'll get more and better shaves per blade, AND Save Steel for Uncle Sam

Midgets Race Here May 3

Auto Drivers Wheel on Fairground Track.

Mansfield again is to have midget automobile races at the fairground track Sunday afternoon, May 3rd. The mighty little cars were so successful in drawing crowds last summer, that several promoters have been after the lease on the track for this year, according to Fair Secretary R. D. Hale, and arrangements have been completed with B. Ward Beam who has promoted speed events for over 25 years.

Beam promoted the big car races at Cleveland's North Randall track with all of the great Indianapolis Speedway drivers as entrants and since 1914 he has handled some of the biggest automobile events in America. At Cleveland alone, he had the greatest driver that ever lived, Frank Lockhart, Ralph De Palma, and today's outstanding star, Wilbur Shaw, three times winner of the Indianapolis grand prix.

The six foot-four promoter did not bother with the midgets until two seasons ago when they developed speed enough to outdo the big cars. Since then he has run them over many of the country's leading half mile tracks, and says he believes they give more thrills than the big race cars ever did.

Entry blanks have just been mailed to the drivers of this section and some of the outstanding stars of the game are expected here, for the Mansfield opener.

THEATERS

Romantic Drama.

"H. M. Pulham, Esq.," based on J. P. Marquand's best-selling novel, opens Wednesday at the Ohio with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey in the leading roles. The picture follows the story as set forth in the book, that of a young Bostonian, who after Harvard and the World war plunges into business activity in a New York advertising agency and meets the love of his life in an ambitious career girl. Then, unable to escape his destiny, he returns to his home town to marry the girl of his family's choice and later tries to recapture the romance of his youth. Young plays the title role and Hedy Lamarr that of the young business woman. Ruth Hussey has the part of the wife.

* * *

Gracie Allen Comedy.

Gracie Allen and William Post, jr., bring the Owen Davis mystery comedy, "Mr. and Mrs. North," to the Madison screen Thursday. No screen bill is scheduled today due to the American Legion Minstrels on the stage tonight. In the mystery comedy Miss Allen has the role of a scatterbrained young wife who takes matters into her own hands when the police seem a little slow at solving a crime in her apartment. Post plays her husband and the supporting cast has Paul Kelly, Rose Hobart, and Lucien Littlefield. Sidney Toler in "Castle In the Desert," is the second attraction.

* * *

Comedy With Music.

Anne Shirley makes her debut as a singing and dancing star with Ray Bolger in "Four Jacks and a Jill," opening today at the Park. Bolger plays a dance band leader whose four-man musical group is dependant upon a young songstress to put the band across. When she quits the band a poser of royalty takes her place and finally puts the show in the upper brackets. Desi Arnaz, the handsome young Cuban introduced in Gloria Swanson's recent picture, has the role of the poser and the cast includes June Havoc. Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Goldmine In the Sky," is the second attraction.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Leane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

WE WISH to thank the many kind friends and neighbors, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Owls, Dominion Electric company, the Guild of the Grace Episcopal church for their greatly appreciated expressions of sympathy and floral tributes, also Rev. Glenn Lewis for his wonderful comforting words and prayers, and the Wappner Funeral Directors for their efficient services in the passing of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Dr. LeBarre.

BEDLESS HUBBY'S PROBLEM SOLVED

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — (U.P.) — Lewis Maloney faced City Judge William Schannen for the second time in two days on a charge of violating a restraining order forbidding him at the home of his wife.

"I haven't any other place to go," Maloney said. "I can't sleep on the sidewalk."

The judge pondered a moment, then solved Maloney's housing problem—for 10 days, at least, Maloney went to jail.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— Escape Goat. By Harold Gray

HA! SO WHOEVER IT WAS TOOK OLD ZANEY OUT THROUGH THIS TUNNEL--BUT WHO DUG THE TUNNEL, AND WHY? THAT OLD PADRE TRIED TO GET INTO MY PLACE--WHY?

TRADING PACE RFMAINS MILD ON STOCK MART

NEW YORK — (AP) — Price changes were mixed and not extensive in the stock market today and the trading pace was mild.

Moving modestly upward were Anaconda, General Electric, and Deere.

Slipping a bit were DuPont, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Goodrich and United Aircraft.

Business observers attached more than casual importance to the report that the power output of the country last week had shown a decline which, though small, was contrary to the seasonal pattern.

Of course, energy output continued to run well above last year because of the tremendous war output but some skilled observers believed the first signs were beginning to show of the gradual shutdown of many kinds of peacetime production.

ARMY AND NAVY HIT SLOWDOWNS

Combine With Other Agencies to Combat Retarding of War Production.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The army and navy were disclosed today to be pooling efforts with five other government agencies in an attempt to combat industrial slowdowns in war production work.

Describing such slowdowns as "reprehensible," Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) made public a letter from Daniel S. Ring, director of maritime personnel, reporting that efforts were underway to develop a "centralized method of treatment of this problem." Ring did not outline the method.

Byrd told reporters he was convinced that in many instances deliberate attempts had been made to retard production, or else inefficiency of management or "Washington bureaucracy" had produced the same results. He said he would ask the senate naval affairs committee to make a thorough investigation if immediate remedial steps were not taken.

Byrd previously created a stir by publicizing a report by Rear Admiral C. W. Fisher, director of naval shore establishments, asserting that work slowdowns had cut production in eight plants making vital war equipment for the navy.

The Virginia senator added that representatives of the army, navy, maritime commission, war production board, war labor board, labor department conciliation service and the bureau of labor standards were developing a uniform procedure which they hoped would solve the problem.

ALLIED FLIERS KNOCK DOWN 4 ENEMY PLANES

anese had swept back into the town after being driven three miles to the south by counter-attacking Chinese troops.

The latest reversal dampened hopes that the British-Chinese Allies might hold the invaders in a "second Bataan," and indicated that the Japanese were now pouring heavy reinforcements into the campaign before the arrival of the monsoon rains.

Chinese reports last week said the Japanese had landed five and one-half fresh divisions—perhaps 80,000 troops—at Rangoon, 200 miles below the Yenangyaung battle sector.

On the Allied left flank, other Japanese columns thrusting toward Mandalay were reported throwing tanks and guns into a furious assault against Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese forces at Pyinmana, 60 miles north of Toungoo and about midway between Rangoon and Mandalay.

In the Philippines, a U. S. navy communique reported that two of Lieut. John D. Bulkeley's sharp-stinting mosquito boats, hiding in jungle-screened bases among the 7,000 islands of the Philippine archipelago, boldly attacked a Japanese cruiser protected by four destroyers in a recent night raid of Cebu island.

The navy's report offset somewhat an army communique disclosing that nearly 3,000 national guardsmen from nine states were among the 37,000 American-Filipino defenders killed, wounded or taken prisoner in the historic battle of Bataan. Only 107 guardsmen were evacuated to Corregidor island when Bataan fell, April 9.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported that 62,600 prisoners had been captured so far in the Philippine campaign, including 10,600 United States officers and men.

Of the Americans, 1,600 were said to be hospitalized.

Evidence that Japan's millions still were jittery over the prospect of new American bombing raids came to light in a second and stronger warning by the Tokyo government against spreading rumors, which it said would be "henceforth a punishable offense."

Apparently attempting to quell unrest, the government first cautioned the people against "baseless rumors" immediately after announcing last Saturday's surprise raids on Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe.

Japanese military authorities continued to minimize the damage inflicted in the history-making assaults, with a spokesman asserting that not more than a dozen houses were destroyed in Tokyo.

Roundabout reports from Japan declared several of the American raiders attempting to reach bases in Free China had been forced to make emergency landings in Japanese-occupied China and had been captured.

One report said some of the downed fliers would be taken to Shanghai to meet newspaper correspondents.
